

Communist China's Third Atomic Blast May Have Faltered

Peking Announcement Did Not Say Explosion Was Hydrogen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Red China may have come up with a dud in an attempt to detonate a hydrogen bomb, Defense Department sources suggested today.

The announcement by Peking radio of Communist China's third atomic explosion Monday said the test included "thermonuclear materials." But Peking stopped short of calling it a hydrogen bomb.

The mention of "thermonuclear materials," Pentagon sources said, could mean one of two things:

—Chinese scientists attached deuterium or tritium, used in a hydrogen weapon to an atomic bomb to analyze the effects of the blast on those elements.

—Or China set out to stage a hydrogen explosion and failed to get the proper energy release required to fuse the thermonuclear reaction.

A hydrogen bomb has an atomic device for a trigger. Millions of degrees of heat—provided by the splitting of the atom—are required to fuse the deuterium or tritium elements—and release their awesome power. The atomic device can, however, go off without unleashing the fusion process.

State Department press officer Marshall Wright said the test was "in the same general range" as the two previous Red Chinese detonations in October 1964 and May 1965. Both of these were equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, or 20 kilotons. Wright did not say whether the test was of a thermonuclear device.

Doubts Affect

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, asked about the test as he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he doubts it affects the international situation any more than did the first or second detonations.

One Atomic Energy Commission official described the blast as "one hundred KT (kilotons) or less."

"We don't know yet whether this was a thermonuclear explosion," he said, "and we won't before we get a reading on the atmospheric debris."

Pentagon sources said manned U2 planes would collect radioactive debris. An analysis of the fallout, combined with seismographic readings, would perhaps provide a key to the type of detonation.

A thermonuclear blast would put the Red Chinese an estimated three years ahead of schedule in their work, according to U.S. estimates.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, AEC chairman, said in 1964 after the first Chinese nuclear test that Red China probably was five years away from developing a hydrogen bomb.

As late as last October, however, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said Red China might set off its first thermonuclear blast within two years.

Jackson is chairman of the Joint Atomic Weapons subcommittee.

Defense Department officials credit Red China with little or no atomic weapons stockpile—but acknowledge that the Communists are on the verge of "weaponizing."

Nelson Seeks Federal Funds Of $3 Billion

Asks Financing for City Sewage Plants To Fight Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation to provide 90 per cent federal financing and $3 billion a year for construction of city sewage treatment plants was proposed today by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Municipal and industrial pollution, he said, soon will destroy the nation's principal water resources unless some such program is established.

"The pollution crisis is deepening so rapidly that the federal government cannot any longer sit back and insist that other units of government solve the problem," Nelson said.

"The fact is, the job is not being done and never will be done unless we make this an urgent responsibility of the federal government."

"If the building of interstate highways is a task so urgent as to require 90 per cent federal financing, certainly the saving of our Great Lakes and our river systems is equally urgent and an equally national in its significance."

Much of the pollution in the Great Lakes and major river systems, Nelson said, has been caused by the inability or unwillingness of cities to build adequate sewage treatment plants.

At present the federal government provides $150 million annually to pay 30 to 40 per cent of the cost of approved projects.

He is proposing a $3 billion a year program of federal grants, with 90 per cent federal financing, or as much as 92 per cent if a city works with a state in sharing the cost and adopts a comprehensive pollution control plan.

"Many communities do not even bother to apply for federal grants today because they cannot raise the other 70 per cent of the cost from their overburdened property-tax systems," Nelson said.

"Many communities are legally prevented from doing so because of constitutional limitations on their borrowing. Many city councils are blocked from doing so by referendum votes."

The military spokesman said Saigon today, and U.S. sentries it had not been determined yet how many of the casualties resulted from the mine explosion and how many were victims of the American fire.

Earlier reports said several passing Vietnamese were knocked off their bicycles by the blast and apparently injured. The others appeared to have been hit by the massive barrage of machine-gun and automatic weapon fire that swept Hai Ba Trung and adjacent streets for nearly half an hour.

In the air war, meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers from Guam attacked the Viet Cong's C Zone near the Cambodian border for the 10th straight day. Their target was a Viet Cong troop concentration area 70 miles north.

Mongolia Acceptance

Renew Interest in Diplomatic Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials were reported looking with renewed interest today at the possibility of opening diplomatic relations with Mongolia, a pro-Soviet Communist country in central Asia bordering the Soviet Union and Red China.

The move was proposed Monday by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield. He said it would help to ease international tensions and provide the United States with "a valuable listening post" at a strategic point of the rivalry between Red China and the Soviet Union.

The State Department was silent on Mansfield's proposal, but policymakers are known to believe that it would work to U.S. advantage. However, the government of Nationalist China on Formosa has opposed U.S. recognition of Mongolia in the past. It regards that remote land as a part of China.

The issue of U.S. nonrecognition policy toward Mongolia arose in its sharpest form in 1961 after the Soviet Union insisted that if the African country of Mauritania was to be given a seat in the United Nations, Mongolia must be admitted at the same time.

As a result U.S. diplomats in Moscow discussed recognition with Mongolian diplomats and found that the Mongolian government was agreeable to establishing diplomatic relations. Action was blocked, however, by Nationalist China which, as a member of the U.N. Security Council, threatened to veto Mongolian membership in the United Nations.

The political tangle thus created was straightened out when the United States dropped its recognition plan and both Mauritania and Mongolia were invited into the world organization.

Since that time U.S. policy on the recognition question has been reviewed periodically but without any publicly known action being taken.

AMC Doesn't Plan Production Cutback

DETROIT (AP)—American Motors said Monday it has no plans for a May cutback in production schedules.

The company is now operating on a five-day a week schedule.

Ford and General Motors have announced plans to cut back on their production schedules. Ford's announcement came Monday.

Aides Report Dirksen Falls, Fractures Hip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., fractured his right hip early today at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, aides reported.

Dirksen, Senate Republican leader entered the hospital Monday night for a checkup. About 3:30 a.m., he arose from his bed and fell, fracturing the hip.

Dirksen, 70, was to undergo surgery this forenoon to reduce the fracture.

Aides said Dirksen will be in the hospital several weeks.

Dirksen worked until past 5 o'clock Monday night, later attended a reception, then went to Walter Reed for one of his periodic medical checkups.

Four Schoolboys Struck by Train

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Four schoolboys were struck by a Milwaukee Road passenger train Monday night.

One of the boys was critically injured, but the other three escaped with apparently minor injuries.

Police said the boys were lying on tracks atop a trestle watching a drainage operation in the Menomonee River when the eastbound Hiawatha bore down on them.

Auto Industry

Leaders Say Safety Issue Hurts Car Sales

DETROIT (AP)—Two of the auto industry's top leaders say Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., that he did not believe the auto safety probe had hurt car sales.

Arjay Miller, president of Ford Motor Co., referred to the "barrenness" of the auto safety issue Monday in reporting a slowdown in Ford production.

Roy Abernethy, president of American Motors and of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, added today:

"Up to now, there have been conflicting sales reports from field offices. Some areas have reported a depressing effect on sales as a result of the Washington hearings; others report little or no effect."

Latest Survey
"The latest survey, completed by our marketing consultants on Monday, shows that the hearings are having a negative effect on sales."

Chrysler President Lynn A. Townsend stuck by his assertion that "we will not know for some time yet what effect auto safety discussions and hearings have had on sales." He added that "we are keeping close tabs on it."

General Motors President James M. Roche said Thursday in a telephone conversation with Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., that he did not believe the auto safety probe had hurt car sales.

Abernethy and Miller pulled no punches in describing the safety hearings and attendant publicity as key parts of the cloudy automotive sales picture.

Ford Production Cut
Ford became the second of the automotive Big Three to slow down production when it announced Monday that its May car quota had been reduced from 261,000 to 242,000—a seven per cent cut. The latter figure, if attained, still would be the highest of any May in Ford history.

In its cutbacks last week, GM put four plants on short work schedules. It said eight others would be idled one to three days during the rest of this month.

Ford's slowdown was based on a different technique, eliminating planned Saturday overtime at some plants. Ford said all its production employees would work regular five-day weeks during the remainder of the month and that limited overtime would be used in some plants.

Proxmire Says $19 Million in Supplies Lost

Service Forced to 'Flagrant Waste' by Lack of Authority

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the Public Health Service was forced to destroy $19 million worth of medical supplies during the past year because it had no authority to release them for use.

He proposed legislation to correct what he called "this flagrant waste." It would amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949.

In a speech for the Senate, Proxmire said the supplies were part of the nation's Civil Defense stockpile stored as a precaution against future disaster.

Surplus Supplies
"Because the medicines, drugs and other supplies technically never become surplus until they have lost their potency and are unfit for human use, the Public Health Service must sit idly by while they become useless," he said.

"These medical supplies should have been used to relieve human suffering and misery instead of being left on some storage shelf until their useful life expired."

A year ago, Proxmire said, the Public Health Service estimated that $62 million worth of these stored supplies had deteriorated, or would do so in a few years, to the point where they would be unfit for human use.

More to Follow
"Already $19 million worth has had to be destroyed," he said. "Every year more will follow."

"Most of the supplies in question are stored in more than 2,000 locations around the country as part of so-called 'packaged disaster hospitals.' 200-bed hospitals that are not available for current use but are kept in waiting for a disaster."

Proxmire said he proposes changing the law to permit such medical supplies to be taken out of storage before their shelf life expires and be used by other government agencies, sold as surplus or donated to public and private non-profit health organizations.

Sorensen Says LBJ Faces Different Asian Troubles Than JFK Did

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—President Johnson faces a full-scale war in Viet Nam, says a former White House aide, while the late President John F. Kennedy faced only a "small-scale insurrection."

Theodore Sorensen, an aide to both presidents, told a Union College audience Monday that, because of the different conditions confronting the two men, it was unfair to speculate what Kennedy might have done if he had not been assassinated.

Coast Guard Will Inspect Soviet Trawler

Russian Captain Requests Use of San Francisco Bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Russian ship captain, seeking to make engine repairs in San Francisco Bay, agreed Monday night to a Coast Guard inspection to verify his claim that an emergency exists.

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs. Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

Shelter Required
International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet fleet that has been fishing in international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saletic, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

Meets Albanians

Mao Appears After Six-Month Absence

TOKYO (AP)—Communist Chinese leader Mao Tze-tung emerged today from a six-month absence from public view to meet with an Albanian government delegation led by Premier Mehmet Shehu.

The Communist New China News Agency reported the meeting, Mao's long period in apparent seclusion had resulted in speculation that he was seriously ill.

The meeting with the Albanians, reported also by Peking radio, was the first official word from Red China that Mao had attended a public function since Nov. 26, when he met a Cambodian military delegation in Shanghai.

The report today did not say where or when Mao met with the Albanians, Red China's only European Communist allies in the Peking-Moscow struggle.

Shehu's delegation arrived in China late last month for the May Day celebrations in Peking, went on a tour and returned to the capital Sunday.

Missed May Day Review
Mao, now 72, did not attend the annual May Day review in Peking. The Chinese government denied the rumors abroad that he was seriously ill or even dead, and a non-Communist source in New York reported last week that the Chinese leader had been at the airport in Peking Feb. 28 to say goodbye to ex-President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana. The source said Mao appeared to be in good health.

Mrs. Wallace Left Foes Far Behind
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Official election returns from last week's Democratic party primary show that Mrs. George C. Wallace, aspiring to succeed her governor-husband, dealt nine male opponents a more thorough defeat than was first thought.

The final returns, released in Birmingham by Roy Mayhall, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, showed that Mrs. Wallace got 490,841 votes, or 54 per cent of the total votes cast for all 10 candidates. When tabulations ceased last week, she had 52.3 per cent.

John Birch Society Operating in Red
BELMONT, Mass. (AP)—Robert Welch, founder of the ultraconservative John Birch Society, says the society won't cut back its program although it is operating in the red.

He acknowledged in a bulletin to members Monday that the society's income totaled slightly more than $4 million last year, one million less than its expenditures. He also said that membership had not grown to anticipated levels.

Journalism 'Hell-Raising, Nosy Business'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A panel of newspaper editors discarded the notion Monday that journalism is a profession, with one editor describing it as "a nosy business and hell-raising."

And, said Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal in Salem, N.C., he would "hate to trade this tradition for a mess of dubious dignities."

Carroll was among newspapermen attending the University of Michigan's Journalism 75th anniversary of journalism instruction.

"I don't consider my occupation a profession," said John O'Brien, managing editor of the Detroit News. "And I don't want it to be."

Turn a Bear Into Fisherman
By Using Soda Straw Pole

BY CAPPY DICK
If you have a toy stuffed animal, such as a bear, you can turn him into an unusually comical creature by making him a fisherman of him. The adjoining illustration shows what can be done to the bear's fore paws with a black thread. Any time you want to pick up the bear and place him elsewhere or take him along with you on a trip, simply remove the fish pole from his paws. When you put him back, tie the pole to his paws again.

Inflation, War Top Arguments In Washington

President Johnson
Cautious in Dealing With Both Problems

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—So far in 1966 the two biggest arguments are over the war in Viet Nam and the danger of inflation. They are not unrelated.

The more the government spends on war, the more profits, prices and wages are affected. Without the war, inflation might seem more remote.

President Johnson, trying to play cautious on how far to go with the war and how far to go to prevent inflation, is making people sore in both cases.

Instead of asking for a tax boost as a major anti-inflation move, he has asked labor and business to take it easy.

Easy means keeping down prices and big wage demands. These are his guidelines, voluntary action, requested of both sides.

Government Controls
But there are arguments on all sides: There should be direct government controls on prices and wages; there should be a tax increase without other controls; neither controls nor taxes are needed.

A few things that happened last week show the divided thinking, if not confusion.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, asked whether it wasn't time for business to pant a little less about profits.

He asked: "Does anyone imagine that labor will continue to show moderation in its wage demands when prices and profit margins are continually rising?"

But—many recent wage settlements have substantially exceeded the guideline suggested for labor, that wage increases should be limited to 3.2 percent a year. Labor spokesmen are not satisfied with the guideline idea.

One Complaint
One complaint they make: The guideline puts a suggested lid on workers while leaving the gate open for business profits, stock dividends and corporate executives' salaries.

Businessmen complain Johnson's guideline for them is federal interference in free enterprise. Some have expressed fear the temporary restraint might become permanent.

Right behind Ackley came William McClesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board which is not under Johnson's thumb like the Council of Economic Advisers.

Martin didn't plead for restraint. He said a tax increase on corporations and individuals is needed now as an anti-inflationary weapon.

Fowler Argument
Then right behind came the secretary of the treasury, Henry H. Fowler, a member of Johnson's Cabinet. He raised a blinker light against Martin's call for a tax increase now.

His argument: The economic trends are still so unclear that a tax increase might be an "over-cure" at least now.

For weeks the Johnson administration has been hemming and hawing about the need for a tax boost, nutting off any thought of action on it until inflation seems more ominously close, if it gets closer.

Since this is a congressional election year Johnson doesn't have to have a political psychologist tell him that a tax increase is not likely to make voters happy.

But Johnson has a seldom-used 21-man Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy. He told it "disquieting signs are beginning to appear."

He called on it for advice, saying: "I want you to ask yourselves: If you were president, what would you do?"

Burning $30 Million Just Part of Daily Grind, He Says

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Give Edwin A. Leforte $28 million and what does he do with it? He burns it.

He does it for a living. Monday he did away with $28 million "it ran a little low," he said. His daily total usually runs around $31 million — sometimes as much as $50 million.

"People seem to get excited about it but it's just so much work. It doesn't mean a thing to us," said the gray-haired Treasury Department employee. "It's just a daily grind; there's nothing to it."

Leforte is chairman of what is known as the Destruction Committee. His main job is to supervise the burning of worn-out paper money in two huge furnaces in the sub-basement of a government building where a tight security guard is maintained night and day.

FPC Chairman Urges Steps On Pollution

BOSTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Power Commission told the power industry today it should heed recent developments in the automobile and drug industries and make prompt improvements in such areas as air and stream pollution.

Lee C. White, in a speech to the American Public Power Association, said the public and its elected representatives have already begun to insist that the industry take steps to:

—Improve the aesthetic aspects of electric power facilities.

—Minimize the air polluting and stream polluting effects of electric power production.

—Develop fully the scenic and recreational potential of hydroelectric projects on the nation's navigable streams.

Low Cost Student Housing Will Help Young Marrieds

BY MARY FEELEY
Dear Mary Feeley:

Like many parents, we have a college senior who plans to leap into matrimony almost on the heels of commencement.

Our son plans to marry in late August and enter graduate school in the fall. We have no objection to this, although we feel it would be wiser if he and his fiancée would wait at least six months — preferably a year. But we're well aware of the futility of convincing either of them.

My husband and I will not be able to help them financially. They both feel that with the young wife teaching — and a possible educational loan or scholarship — they could get by living in student housing at $75 a month.

Could you provide a workable budget for them?

Mrs. O.W.S., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Actually, they have a fair chance of making things go. The history of married students has proved it. But he will certainly need a scholarship or a loan with deferred repayment, to see him through this year.

Let's say the bride brings home $384 a month after taxes. More than 1,200 years after his violent death, the first scientific examination has been made here of bones found in the tomb of St. Boniface, the English missionary who became the "Apostle of the Germans."

Three medical scientists who examined the remains report evidence of gall stones and of a cellulaneous, $20; medical costs, $10; recreation, $20; transportation, $50 (costs of running a car). Total, $384.

This budget provides nothing for savings, and that always distresses me. But if they manage to get through this first year, then they can plan for an insurance program and regular savings.

If they can do without a car there will be some funds for emergencies. Of course, where her job is will be the major factor in transportation costs — along with necessary shopping and recreation. So many young people today consider a car finish their work, only smoke and granulated ash are left. The ashes are sifted to make certain no particles of bills remain. Fine mesh screen covers the chimney top to prevent any burning bills or ashes from flying out.

Life Span
Worn-out bills are removed from circulation by the Federal Reserve banks around the country. The Treasury estimates the average life of $1 bills at 18 months, with the life span advancing for bills of larger denominations to almost nine years for $50 bills.

The reserve banks cut the tattered bills in half horizontally and perforate them with a special stamp before they are sent to Washington. A careful audit is made before they are sent to Leforte and his men.

Then — poof! And up go the millions in smoke.

49 Air Missions
Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers flew 49 missions over North Viet Nam, attacking an aircraft and radar sites, river traffic, storage areas and approaches to the Mu Gia Pass, a gateway to the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

U.S. pilots flew 340 sorties over South Viet Nam Monday, while South Vietnamese fliers aimed at them. They opened fire 193. Their targets were Viet Cong camps, troop concentrations and river traffic.

Ground warfare continued at a low ebb, with the U.S. command reporting only light, sporadic contact with the Viet Cong Monday and no major action.

The terrorist mine in Saigon, a pellet-scattering Claymore, was attached to a bicycle and was set off in an early morning rain at a military bus stop near three U.S. billets. The Viet Cong set off a similar device April 27 at a pickup point for Korean construction workers, killing 10 persons and injuring more than 30.

MP Started Firing
The impact of the blast hit the Suzi Wong tailor shop, which is catered to Americans from the three billets, including the Brink Hotel which the Viet Cong bombed Christmas Eve, 1964.

The pair was booked on charges of criminally receiving stolen goods and were held for appearance in criminal court.

Scientific Examination Made Of St. Boniface's Remains

FULDA, Germany (AP) — "skepticism" about the more than 1,200 years after his violent death, the first scientific examination has been made here of bones found in the tomb of St. Boniface, the English missionary who became the "Apostle of the Germans."

Three medical scientists who examined the remains report evidence of gall stones and of a cellulaneous, $20; medical costs, $10; recreation, $20; transportation, $50 (costs of running a car). Total, $384.

This budget provides nothing for savings, and that always distresses me. But if they manage to get through this first year, then they can plan for an insurance program and regular savings.

If they can do without a car there will be some funds for emergencies. Of course, where her job is will be the major factor in transportation costs — along with necessary shopping and recreation. So many young people today consider a car

Church Request
Roman Catholic Church authorities requested Prof. Hans Reitter, chief surgeon of Fulda Hospital, to examine the bones during restoration work at the tomb-altar in the ancient vaults of the Fulda Cathedral.

Prof. Reitter examined the bones last month, assisted by his wife, who is also a physician, and another surgeon. Their full findings will be published in a medical magazine later this year but the chief points were made public by Prof. Ludwig Pralle, an expert on Roman Catholic Church history.

Pralle said the scientists compared the bones in the tomb with an "authenticated relic of St. Boniface" kept in a reliquary outside the tomb. They established, he added, that all bones had been part of the same skeleton. Thus, the historian

Johnson Responsible For U. S. 'Sales Tax,' Rep. Laird Asserts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Johnson Administration is to blame for what in effect is a five per cent national sales tax, Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., said Monday.

The cost of living has jumped five per cent in the past three months, he said. "The cause lies squarely on the back of the fiscal policies of this administration."

Laird said. "We can't fight a bloody jungle war in Southeast Asia and still conduct business as usual at home."

Some MPs deployed in the area believed the tracer bullets were fired along the street were aimed at them. They opened fire 193. Their targets were Viet Cong camps, troop concentrations and river traffic.

Possessors of '61 World Series Jewelry Arrested
NEW YORK (AP) — Because neither one of them played on the world champion New York Yankees of 1961, two Brooklyn N.Y. men were arrested Monday night.

Police said they picked up the two men comparing a watch and a ring in New York City. The ring bore the inscription, New York Yankees World Champions 1961, and the name of the pitcher Hal Reniff was engraved on it.

The men were identified as John Conforti, 22, and Joseph Calabro. Police quoted Calabro as saying the watch, valued at $800 or more, was his, and that he found the ring.

The pair was booked on charges of criminally receiving stolen goods and were held for appearance in criminal court.

Purge Possible

Chinese Leaders Try To Rally Allegiance

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China's announcement today of its third nuclear explosion strongly indicates that the wave of dissidence on the mainland may be deeper and more widespread than suspected abroad.

The gravity of the "antiparty, antisocialist" movement within China — now apparently the subject of a purge on a scale exceeding that of the "thought" campaign of 1957 — was pointed up by the repeated reference in the nuclear test announcement of the "thought" and leadership of China's 72-year-old party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Success Ensured
The statement said the complete success of the explosion was ensured by the fact that the scientists, technicians, military workers and others involved held high Mao's banner and "gave prominence to politics," creatively studied Mao's works and followed his policies.

It called the feat a "great victory for Mao Tse-tung's thought." In exposing both "antiparty" individuals and those who have merely strayed from the correct path, the Chinese have emphasized that the culprits have either opposed or misinterpreted Mao's writings and thinking.

The use of Mao's name in this statement on the latest bomb test, a practice which was not followed in China's announcements of two previous tests, appeared to be a further effort to rally wavering elements around the Communist party leadership.

The cost of living has jumped five per cent in the past three months, he said. "The cause lies squarely on the back of the fiscal policies of this administration."

Laird said. "We can't fight a bloody jungle war in Southeast Asia and still conduct business as usual at home."

League Takes to Canoes in Study of Fox Pollution

They decided they didn't want to swim in it. Later, at lunch at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Williams, League of Women Voters members had a few musings about drinking it.

The League, in a "Look and See" tour of the Fox from below the condensery dam to just west of Little Chute, found the Fox River to be an eye opener.

Mrs. Williams, chairman of the state conservation study for the league, commented that some of the citizenry is apparently as sloppy as some major effort to clean up its pollution of the river, with millions of dollars spent annually on research for just this purpose.

About 35 League members met at three vital city water locations Saturday morning. They toured Consolidated Papers Inc., the Sewage Treatment Plant or the Water Treatment Plant before going out in seven canoes for a first hand look.

The women found much that appalled but were impressed by some of the effort being made to correct. In the river itself, they saw raw sewage and at one point Mrs. Williams wished she had brought a container to take back for testing some of the solid waste. There was some comment about people building beautiful and expensive homes overlooking water such as this. And the question was raised whether a county health department could help prevent what looked like raw sewage near Little Chute.

The trip and tours were arranged as part of the League's study of agencies, policies and programs on Wisconsin's natural resources, with emphasis on pollution control and recreation facilities.

Not the Same Consolidated Paper was chosen as one of the tour sites primarily because of its location, not because it is a heavy polluter of the Fox. By starting below the dam, the women were saved a portage. In touring the plant the women became aware that it is not only industry, but all water users who pollute. The difference between pollution and contamination is that pollution is detrimental to water and associated plant and animal life and contamination is harmful to human life.

The Consolidated process involves peeling the bark from logs, then chopping the wood into chips, which are cooked with lime, sulfur and water. The process yields lignir liquor, sold as road binder. The wood fibers are bleached with a combination of chlorine and caustic soda, a "harmless but unsightly" effluent that is returned to the river and is visible as a spray from the College Avenue bridge.

A special boiler built in 1963 to meet recommendations of the Wisconsin Pollution Committee for the destruction of sulphite liquor was used only two and a half days in 1965, because commercial demand for the byproduct is sufficient to almost completely use what was formerly effluent.

Small Loss The Consolidated plant uses eight and a half million gallons of water a day, losing only one and a half per cent of its fiber into the river. This is expected to be reduced to less than one per cent.

Acetic acid is one of the harmful paper mill effluents, in that it takes oxygen from the water. As League members moved along the river in canoes, they saw the foam and bands of solid white scum that result from the acidity of the spent sulphite liquor.

The Wisconsin Commission on Water Pollution has started a study of the Fox River, starting at Little Lake Butte des Morts and going to Green Bay. It will study and survey during the worst period of the summer, when temperatures are high and there is less dissolved oxygen in the water and less flow. This summer Kimberly-Clark Corp. will cut production resulting in from 70 to 75 per cent reduction in sulphite liquor. By 1967 there will be no more sulphite pulp making at Kimberly. It either will have been phased out or the sulphite process will be changed to a type with a much lower oxygen demand.

Just For Going League members who visited the sewage plant were given credit "just for going there. How many housewives would?" Mrs. Williams said. At the grit and screen plant the women saw raw sewage flowing in at the rate of 11 million gallons through two pipes 48 inches and 36 inches in diameter. It as here they saw the fish and many rags. The women learned that in winter the temperature of the sewage is 42 degrees, in summer, 72, and that from May to October chlorine is added to kill disease germs. About every other day a large truck hauls large sewage items, such as pulp and paper mill debris and rags, to the Mackville dump. They believe it would be cheaper to have incinerators burn the refuse than to have it treated with lime and hauled to Mackville.

Skin Top Treatment at the sewage plant involves a two-hour process, in which large sediment sinks to the bottom and then goes to the digestors. Lighter debris, such as fats from detergents and soaps is skimmed from the top and then cleaned from a manhole-like container. The remainder is ready for secondary treatment. This makes use of bacteria and oxygen working on the sewage, with the sludge kept activated to keep the bacteria working. It is then released into the river. The April test showed 87 per cent of the sewage removed before release. Expected average is 75 per cent.

Need to Expand William U. Gallaher, water works superintendent who showed the women through this plant, told them that Appleton must expand the capacity of its water works facilities as soon as possible. He pointed out that the city has reached its capacity several times in the last few years and that as the population served by the city water works continues to grow increased demands must be met.

League members who made the tour learned that an experienced eye can tell when Appleton Coated Paper Co. is running certain colors, or when the canner is canning beans. These are not water contaminants, but they are pollutants. The league expressed gratification that the state is not waiting, but has taken at least the preliminary steps to action.

Is Learning League is learning, Mrs. Williams says. Next year members will visit other plants.

As part of the program on conservation, the league has scheduled a public meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Outagamie County Bank Building. Mrs. Richard Burr, state League of Women Voters conservation item chairman and members of the Governor's Commission on Water, will speak about state agencies involved in conservation.

The state league president, Mrs. Donald Clusen, Green Bay, was elected a national board member Friday in Denver and is expected to head the national league study on water resources.

Also attending the national league convention were Mrs. Arch Hoffman, Appleton president, and Mrs. Thomas Widener and Mrs. Frank Kirst of the Neenah-Menasha league.

Seven Canoes and Three separate tours of water facilities and users occupied about 35 League members, who went for a Saturday 'look and see' tour of the Fox River. Above and below, the women discuss their morning and exchange information on the tour. Above are Mrs. Leonard Weis, Mrs. Joseph Dercks and Mrs. Lloyd Williams. Illness-Prone Son Seeks to Repay Parents for Expenses mad and said I had a lot of nerve to be asking for extras after they had spent so much money on my sickness. Dad came in and said mom was wrong. He gave me the money to go to the movie but I didn't enjoy it much. I love my mother and I want to be a good son. I'm sorry I have been sick so much and that it is so expensive but I couldn't help it. I can't get a job because I am too young but I have a couple of friends who have promised to let me know if a paper route opens up. I want to make some money so I can give it to mom to help make up for the things she has been doing without on account of my sickness. Mom is really a wonderful person and I wish you would tell me how I can make her proud of me. I want her to know how much I love her. Please help me — Danny.

Dear Danny: You sound like a wonderful son. I wish you were mine. I have no advice for you, Danny. You don't need any. I just hope that you will always be as generous and kind and free of bitterness as you are today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS I am a widower in my 70th year. I'm far from old, however, and I have more pep than some of my friends who are 20 years younger. I would like to take my granddaughter on a trip to Europe this summer. She is 18 years old and will have completed her freshman year at college. My finances are limited and we could make the trip only if we used double room accommodations. Do you think it is proper for a grandfather to share a room with his 18-year-old granddaughter under these conditions? — M. V.

Dear M. V.: Sorry, Grams, no. I suggest that you both save your money and make the trip in 1967 when you can afford separate rooms.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents, if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Swimsuit Figure

To join the bathing-beauty brigade you have to cut a trim figure. An extra ounce seems like a pound, when you wear a swimsuit. Especially this summer's little nothings!

The first requisite of a trim figure, of course, is normal weight. And, happily, reducing need not be the struggle so many women make of it. You can lose two pounds a week simply by following this basic pattern of delicious eating every day:

1 egg-75 cal.; 1 pt. skim milk or equivalent in other dairy products-160 cal.; 2 slices whole grain bread, or equivalent in other baked goods or cereal-130 cal.; 1 tbsp butter or equivalent in cooking oil-100 cal.; choice of meat, fish or fowl (baked or broiled), not to exceed 300 cal.; 2 or 3 servings non-starchy vegetables, raw and cooked-85 cal.; 1 serving starchy vegetables, (potato, rice, corn)-100 cal.; 1 plain dessert (jello, cupcake), not to exceed 100 cal. Total, 1200 calories.

Special pattern for teen girls: To the above foods add 2 slices bread, 2 pats butter; 1 pt. milk (1 qt. in all, preferably whole

Crushing Poverty Avoidable If Birth Rates Are Curbed

OSHKOSH — For the first time in history it is technically possible for the whole human race to achieve a reasonable standard of health, education, and relief from crushing poverty, Dr. Frank Notestein, President of the Population Council, New York, said here Monday.

His talk in Reeve Memorial Lounge opened a three-day forum on the world population crisis at Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh, sponsored by the WSU-O department of International Studies.

Birth Control Essential

Dr. Notestein's theme was population growth and economic development. His thesis was that reduction of population growth by curbing birth rates is essential if backward countries are to modernize.

"In our country a reduced population growth rate is necessary to improve the quality of life," he added.

The method, he said, is to restrain the population growth while developing the economy, no longer can a population have reasonable health, educational opportunities and freedom from abject poverty by relying on the traditional self-sufficient agrarian economy.

The solution, he maintained, is to slow the population growth to manageable levels where a shift of the economy is possible. "The only hope that means anything in the quality of life is to rely on cheap, inanimate energy and sophisticated use of raw materials."

Dr. Notestein illustrated his statement with the record of agrarian advances in technology. They have improved production only in the technological societies, he pointed out.

In the past decade, the speaker, who travels worldwide for his privately supported organization, said the attitude toward population growth control has vastly changed.

Attitude Change

Governments in most underdeveloped countries are beginning to face the challenge. Overriding population growth poses a threat to the achievement of their aims and even of political coherency, he noted.

"We consistently find the majority of the peoples want to control fertility," he continued. "The people are always ahead of their leaders."

In addition, the United Nations, the World Health Organization, the World Bank are showing interest, he said.

Explaining the economics of the situation, Dr. Notestein said a population growth of 2 per cent required investment of 6 per cent of the national income to stay even. A country like India which spends 80 per cent of its national income on food is unlikely to meet the investment need for industry, education, health and social institutions, he said.

Growth Will Stop

"It is easier to reduce the rate of population growth, reduce the dependence ratio, quickly and invest in improving the quality of life."

"One thing is sure," the speaker said as he began his talk, "the population growth will stop, by death or otherwise."

A second session at 8 p.m. tonight will be a panel discussion on "Science, Religion and the Population Crisis." Panel members includes Dr. Jay Larkey, Milwaukee, chairman of the Medical Advisory Committee of Planned Parenthood Association; Rev. Orville Jansen, editor, Green Bay Register; and Dr. Ravi Kapel, UW-M, Peace Corps director designate for Somalia.

Inflation Affects Cost of Projects

Special Assessments Increase For Appleton's Street Work

Inflation is having an impact on special assessment costs for public works projects in Appleton.

Prices are up for the most part on the basis of rates adopted by the council for the 1966 construction season.

The cost of concrete streets has increased from 96 cents to $1 per front foot.

Other phases of construction also will be costing more in the months to come.

Cost Increase

For example: Asphalt surfacing has risen about 23 cents a front foot; curb and gutter is up 40 cents; grading and graveling, 25 cents; and sidewalk construction, 55 cents.

The special assessment rates for front foot, comparing the 1965 rates with the 1966 figures:

- Curb and gutter, $2.70 ($2.30).
- Grade and gravel new streets, $2.45 ($2.20).
- Sidewalk construction, $2.60 ($2.05).
- Asphalt surface street, $1.75 ($1.50).
- Concrete pavement graded for construction, $5.66 ($4.70).
- Concrete pavement, not graded, $6.30 ($5.30).
- Sewer installation Same.

The cost of having sanitary sewers installed will be the same as last year, $3.50 a front foot.

Property owners will get a break when it comes to sewer main installation with the cost rate again set at 50 cents a foot—for the entire winter season.

The price of snow removal in residential areas was hiked 20 cents this year and will be 10 cents a foot—for each time the sidewalk is shoveled.

Looking back to public works special assessment rates in 1956—a decade ago—the price increases per foot have varied as follows:

- Curb and gutter, increased 75 cents; grade and gravel new streets, 80 cents; sanitary sewer, $1.25; water mains, $1.35; sidewalks, 85 cents and residential snow shoveling, seven cents.

Downtown snow removal has remained the same at 50 cents per foot a season.

Preliminary Okay Given Grade School

MENASHA — By a show of hands, a vote of confidence was given unanimously Monday night by members of the common council and Menasha town board for the construction of the proposed $922,000 elementary school on Airport Road.

Preliminary cost estimates have been pared $101,000 from the original cost estimate of $1,023,000 presented to the board of education on April 22.

Architect Robert Paynter said that in going over plans with the board and its planning committee it had been possible to cut general construction by $22,000; painting construction, $700; plumbing construction, $3,300; heating, $9,000; electrical $5,000; school equipment $40,000; fees $16,000 and improvement, $5,000.

The preliminary approval was given the board of education to set wheels in motion so the 20 classroom school can be ready for use by September, 1967.

Spruce Tree Sprouts Tiny Red Buds After Roots Were Ticked

MENASHA — A spruce tree on Lush street is in a "family way" because somebody tickled its roots.

The 30-year-old tree in the front yard of the G. A. Fahrnkug home, 108 Lush St., recently began sprouting tiny red buds at the tips of most of the higher branches.

It was the first time the tree had bloomed, much less with red buds, and the owners called County Agent Vernon Peroutky to find out why the sudden reproduction.

They mentioned gas line construction work had been done a short time ago, and Peroutky asked if the tree's roots had been disturbed.

Told they had, the agriculture agent replied the disturbance had probably triggered the tree's self-preservation mechanisms. The result was that it went into bloom as a means of continuing the species, should the parent tree die.

Politicians May Play Game

'Big League' Baseball May Return To Milwaukee Via Chicago, Valley

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"Big league" baseball may return to Milwaukee County Stadium this year after all — thanks to Appleton and Chicago politicians.

"I'm working on it," Mayor George Buckley said here today.

Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago couldn't be reached for comment.

Neither could Milwaukee city and county officials who were reportedly vacationing in Atlanta.

The last report on the Brave-less Milwaukee County Stadium is that it may be leased to an automobile tycoon who wants to convert it into the world's biggest used car supermarket.

May Be Spared Fate

However, the stadium may be spared this pride-shattering fate if members of the Appleton and Chicago councils can arrive at "contract" terms.

Negotiations are rumored underway to have Appleton aldermen pit their baseball acumen against that of their Chicago counterparts.

Should the game materialize, County Stadium would be the logical neutral field.

But there reportedly are problems to be overcome if the "battle of two cities" is to take place on the baseball diamond.

They say the television rights may trigger a dispute.

Possible Problem

Handling the beer and bratwurst concession may also pose a problem.

This all started with an innocent enough three paragraph letter to Mayor Buckley from the administrative staff for the Chicago Common Council.

"We here in the City Council Service Division who enjoyed a most pleasant association with you and among whom you tested your political wings, are proud and happy to express to you our sincere congratulations upon your election as mayor of the City of Appleton," the Chicagoans wrote.

"In retrospect, it was not too long that you exercised your potential as a representative of the people and we are confident you will administer the responsibilities of your new office with efficiency, prudence and judicious temperament," they added.

And then came the P.S. that set the stage for the baseball talk.

Suggest Baseball Game

"In anticipation of a propitious time in the future, we shall be happy to discuss the possibility of scheduling a baseball game between our respective city councils, utilizing the facilities of County Stadium in Milwaukee," added the Chicago Council's chief clerk.

Buckley said he took the parting statement as a challenge rather than a "needle" that Wisconsin has lost major league baseball.

"His Honor" will know in a few weeks whether Appleton aldermen are game to have the game.

And, once the time and place has been agreed upon — through official channels, of course — the Appleton City Council will be requiring the services of a bathy ... or should it be Batman?

National Police Week

Appleton Lawmen Set Observance Activities

The Appleton Police Department has scheduled several activities for the local observance of National Police Week, May 15 through May 20.

The observance, probably one of the most extensive in Appleton since National Police Week was proclaimed in 1962 by the late President John F. Kennedy, will start with a special memorial service at 7 a.m. Sunday at St. Theresa Church, 213 E. Wisconsin Ave.

Outagamie County police and police enforcement agencies from surrounding communities have been invited to take part in the service. Policemen will file into the church in a body, most of them in uniform. It will be the first time a special service of this type has been held here, according to Capt. Jerome Kavaney who is in charge of arrangements.

Program Coordination

The overall program is being coordinated by Lt. Robert Lathrop and Sgt. Roland Recker of the police identification bureau.

Policemen will set up a large display Saturday morning at the First National Bank.

The display in the southeast corner of the bank will show police equipment, accident photographs and other police case material, and a manikin wearing a police uniform.

A policeman will be on duty during regular bank hours to answer questions, give information, and hand out materials dealing with police work.

Lathrop said he plans to have a radar display set up from a battery to show how the device works in timing vehicles.

Lathrop and Recker said they hoped the public would take the opportunity, during National Police Week, to become acquainted with the many phases of law enforcement work.

They mentioned gas line construction work had been done a short time ago, and Peroutky asked if the tree's roots had been disturbed.

Told they had, the agriculture agent replied the disturbance had probably triggered the tree's self-preservation mechanisms. The result was that it went into bloom as a means of continuing the species, should the parent tree die.

Fox Valley Families Don't Move as Frequently as Most

A recent study conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau reveals that families in a four-county Fox River Valley area, and the state of Wisconsin in general, are less transient than are people in the rest of the country.

Surveys conducted on a national level show that 47 per cent of the United States' population now lives in different houses than they were five years ago. In Outagamie County the ratio of movers over the past five years is 40 per cent while 39 per cent of the people of Winnebago County have moved. Thirty-six per cent of Calumet and Waupaca County residents have changed their addresses over the same five year period.

The figures are far below the amount of moving done nationally. What impels people to move from one place to another? The survey shows that a number of social and economic factors are behind it.

The mobility rate was found to be highest among persons between the ages of 20 and 24.

Results of the survey for the four counties mentioned show that 90,395 residents have changed their addresses at least once in the preceding five year period.

Short Moves

Included in this total were 69,411 who merely moved to new locations within their respective counties and 31,184 who came from outside any one of the four counties to establish a new residence.

Some, on the other hand, moved to other parts of the country. How many did so is not known.

Village Kiwanis to Hear 'Law Day' Talk

KIMBERLY — Irving Curry, Kaukauna attorney, will speak on Law Day at a Kiwanis Club dinner at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Darby Club.

The program was scheduled last week, but had to be postponed due to other commitments by the speaker. Final plans will be discussed for a bicycle rodeo which will be held later this month in conjunction with the police department.

Plans call for Kiwanis members to make safety checks of bicycles after which youngsters hoped the public would take the will compete in running an obstacle course. Police will be on hand to issue bicycle licenses.

Mayor Starts Negotiations For Soldiers Square Ramp

Mayor George Buckley and other officials started negotiations today with owners of property the city intends to acquire for constructing the planned Soldiers Square parking structure.

Representatives of the MacLaren Estate were here from Milwaukee, and two other local property owners attended the session in the mayor's office at city hall.

Participating in the negotiations with the mayor were Public Works Director Robert W. Bues and City Atty. David Geenen.

Should the parties not be able to arrive at agreement in future weeks, the city intends to begin condemnation proceedings.

The city owns about 60 per cent of the property needed for the multi-level ramp construction.

The MacLaren Estate controls most of the other property and is asking $225,000.

It was reported that another property owner has offered to sell for $100,000. The assessed valuation of his property is on the city's books at about $11,000.

This advertisement is neither an offer to sell nor solicitation of offers to buy any of these notes. The offering is made only by the Prospectus.

Rudy Swanson, an Appleton film producer traveling in Europe, gets ready to shoot a street scene in West Berlin, Germany. Behind him is the Berlin Wall. When he trained his camera across the Wall, he saw a machine gunner on the East Berlin border staring at him through field glasses.

At Berlin's Checkpoint Charlie

Appleton Film Producer Has Uneasy Moments

An Appleton film producer boasts ultra modern buildings, traveling in Europe with his store windows crowded with wife and his camera had a few attractive merchandise, well uneasy moments recently when he crossed the Berlin Wall at Checkpoint Charlie.

His West Berlin guide waved him across the border with the words, "I hope to see you again in a few hours."

The producer, Rudy Swanson, said he assumed the word "hope" was added in case diplomatic relations broke down while he was in East Berlin. He spent one day touring the Eastern sector.

At the checkpoint his West German money was exchanged for East German marks and he was issued a personal number.

Worker Paradise
"But if one buys merchandise in the Eastern Sector and has change left, he may as well give it to anyone he sees because one is forbidden to carry Eastern marks out of the country," Swanson noted.

He also said it costs 1 1/2 marks — 37 cents — to enter the "Workers Paradise."

However, the sights in "paradise" were far from pleasing. More than 20 years after World War II, bombed out buildings and rubble are 'mute monuments that progress under Communism evolves slowly," he said.

Visual Contrasts
Swanson was impressed by the strong visual contrasts between East and West Berlin. No flowers bloom in the Eastern parks, show windows display only shoddy-looking goods, people dress poorly, few cars move along the streets and streetcars are practically empty, he observed.

In contrast, West Berlin

Criticism of Viet Nam Policy May Backfire on LBJ Critics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some influential politicians say they are beginning to read grass roots signs that sharpening attacks on President Johnson's Viet Nam policy may rebound years from now.

There is a growing feeling that continued attacks are likely to arouse sympathetic support for the President from citizens who are not so interested in how the United States got tangled up in Viet Nam as how it can extricate itself honorably.

The men around Johnson disagree vigorously with Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., that if the issue of the "illegality of U.S. conduct" in South Viet Nam were put to the voters the administration's position would be repudiated.

Demands Hearings
Morse Monday demanded public hearings on the legality of the U.S. presence in Viet Nam. He said only next fall's elections can prevent escalation of the war.

Johnson, a devotee of polls, is convinced he has majority support for continuing the war on a restricted basis. He has taken pains to make it clear he disavows it as an issue likely to topple Democrats—particularly those who support him—in the November voting on Senate and House races.

Republicans in Congress think it will be a major issue. But they are divided on how to handle it.

GOP Differences
House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford favors pressing charges that the administration has been mismanaging the war. But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen wants the issue of a frustrating war to speak for itself, without Republican prompting.

Outside of Congress, Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, and Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 nominee, have assailed Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Goldwater said Fulbright had been giving "aid and comfort to the enemy" in his criticism of Johnson policies. He called for Fulbright to resign as committee chairman.

Nixon said that if the country

Ky Comments Touch Off Big Controversy

Differences Exist Over Whether He Will Stay in Office

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—What did Premier Nguyen Cao Ky say at a news conference Saturday about remaining in power?

The report that he said he would stay in office for at least another year has touched off controversy in South Vietnamese political circles and in Washington.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk says Ky's remarks were misinterpreted and that a transcript furnished him of the news conference did not contain the statement by Ky which aroused the controversy.

No transcript was made during the conference, although Ky repeated the gist of his remarks afterward from an NBC television crew. As reconstructed from the NBC tapes and Western newsmen's notes, this is what he said:

Stay in Power
Q. Will you resign when an assembly is elected (this fall)?

A. No. Their mission is to draft the constitution. I will stay in power until the National Assembly is elected. Now it will be only a constituent assembly, they have no right to name a government. There will be another election some time in 1967.

Asked whether he will stay in power until then, Ky replied: "If I feel strong enough, in good health, and if my wife lets me—yes."

Q. That means your government is staying in power another year?

A. The government stays until the constitution is drafted. Then a legislative assembly will be created.

Another Election
Q. You mean there will be another election next year?

A. Yes, election for National Assembly.

Q. Then you are staying in power for another year?

A. At least for another year. There is no doubt about that.

(Rusk told an ABC television interviewer Sunday that "Ky didn't say according to the transcript I have in front of me that he is going to stay in office another year. He did refer to election for a National Assembly to be conducted in 1967. He didn't say what time in 1967.")

Q. When elections are held for the assembly, are you thinking of being a candidate for that?

A. You mean the final election in 1967, yes.

No Transcript
(Rusk said in the television interview that Ky replied, "I don't know" when asked whether he would run for the National Assembly. The secretary of state added, however, that he did not have a full transcript of Ky's news conference.)

(Rusk told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Monday

After Book Published Sex Physiologists Are Flooded With Letters

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Two researchers who wrote a text on sex physiology have been flooded with hundreds of letters since the book was released three weeks ago.

Dr. William H. Masters and a psychologist, Virginia E. Johnson, wrote "Human Sexual Response." The book is based on an 11-year laboratory study at Washington University of sexual stimulation in 694 men and women.

Masters said about 30 per cent of the mail is divided evenly among unsigned crank criticism, honest disagreement, and encouragement. He said the other 70 per cent comes from people with problems of sexual inadequacy.

Takes Courage
"In our age it takes courage to admit sexual problems," Masters said. "It has been our experience that after people gather their courage to write us once, they probably won't again unless they are directed toward help in the immediate future."

Mail to the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation, which the team helped to create, has increased measurably since their book's publication April 18. The first printing sold out in three days.

"We are amazed at the response to the book," Masters said. "It was totally unexpected, not only for us but the publishers. They were not prepared for it either. The text was written primarily for the medical and behavioral professions."

Technical Language
"Human Sexual Response," illustrated and written in the matter-of-fact technical language of the scientist, describes bodily processes during sexual relations. A glossary of terms is at the rear of the 365-page volume. The textbook was published by Little Brown and Co. of Boston, Mass.

"I hope people who buy the book will read it," said Masters. "But there is an awful lot of dry reading that will be skipped by those not interested in basic physiology."

Royalties from the book sales will be divided equally among the research foundation, Masters and Mrs. Johnson.

For 18 months, the two scientists have been studying data for a second volume, "Human Sexual Inadequacy." This book will involve clinical applications of their earlier findings.

Most Complex Flight Plan Astronauts Begin Practicing for Gemini 9 Launch Set Next Week

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—America's next pair of astronauts climbed into their Gemini 9 spaceship today and rehearsed the complex dual countdown that will send them rocketing aloft next Tuesday to test skills needed to land on the moon.

Before next week's three-day space adventure concludes, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan is to take a record-duration space walk and use a rocket-powered back pack.

Command pilot Thomas P. Stafford is to steer Gemini 9 on several rendezvous attempts with an Agena target satellite and jolt Gemini 9 into a new orbit by firing the 16,000-pound-thrust Agena engine while their spacecraft is hooked up with it.

The flight plan for Gemini 9 "is to date one of the most complex and sophisticated," Air Force Lt. Col. Stafford said. Today's countdown—called a simultaneous launch demonstration—is the start of two days of intensive rehearsals designed to test equipment and brief technicians in the blockhouse on procedures necessary to launch Gemini and its Agena target satellite one hour, 29 minutes apart.

Wednesday Gemini 9 will go through a simulated flight—where it is counted down for three practice liftoffs. Equipment in the spaceship and on the ground which will be used during early phases of the actual flight will be checked out.

Preparations continued for a noon (EST) liftoff Wednesday for a scientific satellite called Atmospheric Explorer. The spacecraft, a shiny ball weighing 495 pounds, is scheduled to ride a Delta rocket into an egg-shaped orbit ranging from 170 to 750 miles above the earth to study the chemistry of the upper atmosphere.

Tuesday Launch
Next Tuesday, the Agena—hoisted by an Atlas booster—is to blast off at 10 a.m. (EST). If the cylindrical space engine achieves a proper orbit, Stafford and Cernan will rocket aloft at 11:39 a.m. and begin a court passed out questionnaires: tricky four-house chase to catch to 760 jurors over the last eight months.

"We asked them if there was anything they wanted to make known to us, if they had any suggestions," Judge Murray said.

"The one suggestion that showed up with some recurrence," she said, "was that the women wanted a panel put up in front of the jury box because their skirts have grown shorter."

Judge Murray said the judges who heard her report—about "was amusing."

Racine School Board Rules Out Clothing Book

RACINE (AP)—The Racine Unified School Board voted Monday night against adopting a book that includes a section about clothing worn by some Negro men.

Schools Superintendent John Prash said the book, "Dress Adornment and the Social Order," contained passages that would be controversial if quoted out of order.

The book was intended for use by a class of girls in junior year of high school.

The board first considered the book last month. At that time, Prash quoted this passage: "Since many Negroes are generally concerned as socially inferior, both by themselves and whites, it was suggested that the individual Negro compensate for this position through clothing symbols."

"A position economically inferior to that of the Negro female may force Negro males to use those hats and shoes invested with sexually gratifying symbols."

Idle Foxes Gain on Burlington, Release Pair of Players

Bees to Invade Goodland Field Thursday for Start of Series

Although idled because of cold weather, the Fox Cities Foxes gained a half-game on Midwest League-leading Burlington Monday night to further beat up the pennant race.

The runnerup Foxes, who had been scheduled to play at Decatur, moved to within one half game of defending champion Burlington, an 8-4 victim of Clinton.

The Fox Cities is scheduled to open a 2-game set at Quincy tonight. Thursday, the Foxes return to Goodland Field to begin a head-to-head duel with Burlington's Bees.

The Burlington-Foxes series, which will run three games, is the most important of the young ML season to date.

In the only other league game played Monday, Quad Cities downed Waterloo, 6-3.

The Foxes have released infielder Gus Sposito and pitcher Joe Jancaric to Sarasota of the Florida Rookie League.

Outfielder Ron Lolich has been assigned to the Foxes by the parent Chicago White Sox club, but he has not been placed on the official roster, as yet.

Lolich, who has just completed a 6-month stint in the Marine Corps, batted .299 for Sarasota, in 32 games last season and was named to the circuit's all-star team. He is a cousin of Detroit's Mickey Lolich.

Cut-down date for the Foxes and other Midwest League teams is May 24.

One of the features of the annual Northside Advancement Association's booster game will be the awarding of a shellback pony. The May 24 game will match the Foxes and Waterloo.

Admission to Goodland Field will be 35 cents together with one of the booster-game tickets that are available free at Northside business establishments. Many merchandise prizes will be awarded at the game.

Will Face Burlington

Rath Improves Control, Builds Impressive ERA

BY TERRY GALVIN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fox Cities righthander Fred Rath, who narrowly missed a no-hitter in his latest appearance, Saturday night, will start one of the three important games of the Burlington series, which gets underway at Goodland Field Thursday.

Rath was the Foxes' chucker that came within one strike of pitching a second consecutive no-hitter at Goodland Field Quad Cities' Vern Geisbert blanked the Foxes without a hit the previous night.

Speaking of Geisbert's performance, Rath was among the press box spectators during the Angel pitcher's masterful showing. Rath, a Baylor University grad, was charting the pitches of his teammates in preparation for his turn on the mound the following evening.

Along about the seventh inning, the "regulars" of press box row were chattering deliriously about Geisbert's "good thing going." Hardly one to ignore the conversation, the personable Rath was jokingly asked if it was his turn tomorrow night to throw a no-hitter.

Bent on Success

Though he failed to issue a direct answer to the repeated jibes, Rath took the hill the ensuing night, apparently bent on success. Much to the amazement of the non-believers upstairs, Rath sailed through the first 8 2-3 munnings with little difficulty, but then, the bubble burst.

With a 3-2 count on the Angels' Vic Torruellas, Rath's next pitch was a ball, and Doug Griffin snapped the invaders' hitless string with a line single to left, the first ball hit out of the infield by Quad Cities on this night. Substitute outfielder Mike Miller followed with a ground single up the middle, scoring Torruellas and ruining Rath's last bid, a shutout.

Probably with the memory of Geisbert's no-hitter emblazoned in his mind, Rath admitted knowing he had the no-hitter going as early as the fifth inning.

Not one to mope, Rath found pleasure in the win and shrugged off the loss of his no-hit bid after getting so close. "I'm really surprised with myself this year," he offered. "Last season in the Rookie League, I had so many walks I couldn't count them, but this year in 25 innings I've walked only six."

"I'm getting ahead of the hitters more this season and my

M&M Boys Strike Again; Yankees Edge Twins, 3-2

Mantle, Maris Each Homer; Cold Weather, Rain, Snow Forces Three Postponements

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The M&M boys strike again. It had been a while — nearly a year — but Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris finally left their mark on an opponent Monday night as the New York Yankees edged Minnesota 3-2 for their third straight victory since Ralph Houk began his second reign as manager.

Mantle hit his first home run of the season and Maris recorded his second, marking the first time since June 18, 1965, that they had connected in the same game.

The Yankee outfielders gained the label of M&M because of their torrid homer hitting that made them baseball's most awesome twosome in the first half of this decade and powered the Yankees to five consecutive American League pennants.

Slowed By Injuries

Last year, however, injuries reduced their effectiveness to where they combined for only 27 homers and connected in the same game only twice.

It was his poor performance in 1965 and his weak start this season that Mantle referred to Saturday night when he talked privately to Johnny Keane after

Mantle Maris

The Yankees fired him and re-named Houk as manager. "I just told him that I was ashamed to look him in the face," Mantle said, "because since he came here he was the only man I played for that I felt I let down in baseball. 'I really feel like I let him down. I didn't do anything while he was here, and most of the ball club didn't. I still think we have a good ball club and hope we do well. I'm just sorry that if we start going good, he's not here with us."

Are Going Well

The Yankees are going well compared with the first 20 games of the season when they won only four times. Mantle, in particular, is going well.

While he drove in only one run in the first 18 games he played, he now has knocked in five of the 11 the Yankees have scored in their three-game winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, California outslugged Washington 10-7 and Kansas City whipped Boston 6-1. Cincinnati defeated Atlanta 7-4 in the only National League game.

Cold weather stopped St. Louis at Chicago, rain washed out Los Angeles at Philadelphia and snow stopped San Francisco at Pittsburgh.

Mantle's homer was a 370-foot drive in the fourth inning while Maris' 410-foot blow in the seventh was the 250th of his career and tied the game 2-2. Joe Pepitone then won it for Mel Stottle-

Bill Fitzpatrick to Coach at the New Little Chute School

Leaves St. John After 15 Years; Avitus Ripp Hired as Successor

LITTLE CHUTE — Bill Fitzpatrick, veteran coach of athletics at St. John High School, has resigned his post to accept a similar position at the new Little Chute Public High School and an assistant coach at St. Catherine High School, Racine.

Fitzpatrick was bombed again in August. The new coach is married and the father of one boy.

In 15 years at St. John's, Fitzpatrick's football teams produced a 72-35-2 record, won four Fox Valley Catholic Conference championships and shared the FVCC grid title on three occasions, the latest being 1964 when St. John and Appleton Xavier tied for the crown.

Bill Fitzpatrick

has been named to handle the duties at St. John's.

Fitzpatrick, who has handled the entire sports and physical education program at St. John's for the last 15 years, will complete this school term before switching to the public school which is presently under construction. The new school is expected to open in September with freshmen and sophomore classes.

Avitus Ripp, 25, a 1964 graduate of Whitewater State, has been hired to replace Fitzpatrick at St. John's. Ripp served as varsity line coach in football, freshman basketball coach and is tennis coach at St. Catherine's.

Ripp was graduated from Whitewater with a degree in education. He is a native of Middleton and has been at St. Catherine for two years. Ripp said he will enroll at University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee for a summer school session and

Atlanta Attendance Slips Further Off Milwaukee '53 Pace

ATLANTA (AP)—Baffling Tony Cloninger was bombed again Monday night as the Atlanta Braves dropped their third straight, bowing to Cincinnati 7-4 before only 9,718 fans.

The slender crowd dropped the Braves home attendance far behind the pace set by Milwaukee fans in 1953, the Braves' first season in Wisconsin. The Braves have now drawn 231,167 fans in 12 home dates. In 1953, they drew 279,212 in their first 12 appearances in Milwaukee.

The Reds reached Cloninger for five runs, including two home runs, in three innings. It was the sixth straight time last season's 24 - game winner failed to finish.

Brings Own Undoing

Cloninger, down 1-0 after giving up three singles in the second, brought about his own undoing in the third when the Reds jumped on him for four runs.

The burly pitcher booted Tommy Helms' one-out roller. Pete Rose followed with a home run.

The Appleton High School junior varsity track team recorded a 67-51 victory over the Green Bay Preble JVs recently.

AHS' Tim Huht tied the school pole vault mark by clearing the bar at 12 feet. Huht, a senior, was not competing on a point basis, however, and AHS' Bob Manville was the official winner.

Bill King placed first in the 100-yard dash in 10.85 seconds and topped the low hurdles in 22 seconds. King also placed third in the high hurdles and ran a leg on the 880-relay team, which eventually had to forfeit to Preble, despite winning handily.

Other Terror victors were: Dave Hoffmeister, 2:11.7 in the 880; Scott Schultz, 4:55 in the mile; Bob Simon, broad jump; Gary Lutz, shot put; and the mile relay of Sam Hesse, Paul Koch, Tom Freude and Joel Hanna.

Moses Added to Yankee Staff

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The New York Yankees added Wally Moses to their coaching staff Monday night before their game with the Minnesota Twins.

Moses will coach at first base, replacing Vern Benson, who was fired along with Manager Johnny Keane last Saturday.

Ralph Houk, Keane's successor, appointed Moses, a Yankee coach when Houk managed the club in 1961 and 1962. He has been a batting instructor in the Yankees' farm system since then.

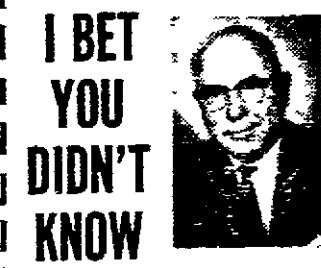

Tony Oliva Misses
Yank Game Because Of Dental Surgery

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tony Oliva, the American League batting champion the past two years, missed Monday night's Minnesota Twins-New York Yankees game because of dental surgery earlier in the day.

Oliva had an abscessed tooth removed after experiencing a toothache for several days. His jaw swelled after the extraction.

Oliva, who has a .394 batting average, is expected to return to the Minnesota line-up tonight.

SPORT FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Behnke

Here's an oddity . . . The man considered by most experts as the greatest baseball player of all-time — Ty Cobb — NEVER played on a team that won a World Series! . . . Cobb was in the majors 24 seasons and none of the teams on which he played ever made it to a World Series title.

Here's one of those sports oddities that's hard to believe — but it's true . . . The horse that won the Kentucky Derby of 1933, Brokers Tip, strangely enough, had never won a race previous to the Derby, and never won a race after that!

Did you know Mickey Mantle was originally a shortstop? . . . Mickey played at short full-time his first two years in the minors . . . The Yankees converted him into an outfielder when they brought him up in 1951.

I bet you didn't know . . . We are selling the new lint remover called Neat Trick. No sticky tape, no refills. Just rinse roller occasionally in soap and water. Neat Trick is ready to use — $3.50

Rookie Leads in Homers

Boston's George Scott
Puzzle for AL Hurlers

BY LEW FERGUSON

ST. PAUL—Minneapolis (AP)—In this day and age when top-rated rookie prospects demand — and get — hundreds of thousands of dollars in professional football and baseball, it appears the Boston Red Sox may have landed themselves a real home-run slugger for $10,000.

He is George Scott, a 22-year-old rookie who currently leads the American League in homers with 10, including seven in his last 10 at-bats.

Scott hit fast balls for a homer off Dave Boswell Friday night and another off Jim Grant Sunday. He hit a curve for his other homer, off Al Worthington.

"We haven't figured out how to pitch him. The pitchers will find out something to get him out and the word will spread. If they don't, he'll hit 300. He's a heck of an aggressive hitter."

Scott hit fast balls for a homer off Dave Boswell Friday night and another off Jim Grant Sunday. He hit a curve for his other homer, off Al Worthington.

last eight games. Pitchers don't know what to throw to the 6-foot-2, 200-pound Scott, who signed with the Red Sox four years ago.

Word Will Spread

"We heard he was a high-ball hitter," Minnesota Manager Sam Mele said after Scott hit three homers in a four-game weekend series here. "But he bases on a one-pitch sock."

Worthington said, "I'd have to say he hits a curve ball pretty good."

Scott is like Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota in that he has so much strength he can pole homers to the opposite field if he just meets the ball.

His three home runs here went 385 feet to right, 370 feet to left-center and 440 feet to straightaway center.

Rath Improves His Control

control is greatly improved over that of a year ago," declared the business administration ma-

Scott, a native of Greenville, Miss., hit 25 home runs for Pittsfield in the Eastern League last year and batted .319.

What was the jump like from an AA league to the majors in one step?

"These pitchers up here get the ball around the plate," Scott said. "In the minors you never knew what to expect."

"Then the lighting is different

4 "Actually, I could have lost the no-hitter earlier in the game, but the boys really came up with a couple of fielding gems, especially the 'Deacon's (Jones) backhanded grab of that hard grounder down the first-base line," the 6-3, 196 pound hurler added.

Rath's credentials after the no-hitter look impressive. He's allowed just 10 hits and two earned runs in 25 innings, en route to a 3-0 record. Fred has walked only six, compared with 22 strikeouts, and boasts a glittering 0.73 earned run aver-here, too. It's like playing under candlelight in the minors."

Is Scott going to replace teammate Tony Conigliaro, who currently has only two homers, as American League home run champion?

"I went the first two months last year and hit only one home run," Scott replied. "The same thing could happen here."

"Don't go writing stuff about Babe Ruth."

DiMaggio Scores Ace to Win Own

But truthfully, that single run that QC managed with 2-out in the ninth boosted his ERA from 0.56 (before game time) to it's present status.

Nevertheless, the Little Rock Ark. native, who attended Baylor on a track scholarship and didn't play baseball at the school until his senior year, turned in a tremendous performance under pressure.

Television Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hall of Fame baseball star Joe DiMaggio sank his first hole-in-one golfing Monday and won a color television set.

The former New York Yankee Clipper dropped a No. 8 iron shot at the 140-yard 15th hole at Sharp Park in the Goddard's Tournament.

Donor of the television set prize was Joe DiMaggio.

Sales for A-C Show 22.9 Pct. Gain Over '65

Appleton Man Renamed to Board Of Milwaukee Firm

MILWAUKEE — Chairman Robert S. Stevenson of Allis-Chalmers told shareholders Wednesday that sales for the first four months of 1966 totaled $278 million, or 22.9 per cent above those of the corresponding period of last year.

Stevenson told the annual meeting that April sales exceeded those for April, 1965 by more than $10 million.

President Willis G. Scholl reported in 1965 more than 51 per cent of the dollar volume of billings came from products that were not offered by the company prior to 1960.

"Certainly, this dramatically illustrates the significance of sound innovation," he said.

New Products

Scholl said new products include:

- Large air blast circuit breakers for high voltage power lines.
- Lawn and garden tractors.
- A new farm tractor offering for the first time a choice of five power plants and many optional features.
- An electric motor that is 45 per cent smaller and 30 per cent lighter than previous models of the same horsepower and speed.

Scholl pointed out that last year alone, the company invested more than $30 million in research, engineering and development efforts.

Directors of Allis-Chalmers re-elected at the annual meeting were:

Fred Bohlen, Des Moines, Iowa; W. C. Buchanan, Peoria, Ill.; W. E. Buchanan, Appleton; D. A. Forward, New York City; Beauchamp E. Smith, York, Pa.; Joel Hunter, Pittsburgh; Wayne A. Johnston, Chicago; and Boyd S. Oberlink, Louisville, Ky.

Stevenson, Howard J. Tobin and P. F. Bauer, all of Milwaukee.

Schmidt was chosen as the most valuable player for the Tigers, who compiled a 7-2 record. A both-ways star, Schmidt averaged 5.3 yards per carry, received eight passes, caught a touchdown pass and averaged 38.1 yards on his punts.

Podres Traded To Detroit by Los Angeles

13-Year Veteran Happy to Go to American League

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Veteran left-hander Johnny Podres of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who has been a National League pitcher for his entire 13-year major league career, is excited over the prospects of moving into the American League.

And one big reason is that he

will be rejoining Detroit Tiger Manager Charley Dressen, whom Podres broke in under as a rookie with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Dodgers announced Monday they had traded Podres to the Tigers for an unnamed player and an undisclosed amount of cash.

No Other Team

Podres has never played for any team but the Dodgers; first in Brooklyn and later in Los Angeles.

In Detroit, Dressen said he plans to get good mileage out of the 33-year-old pitcher.

"I might use him in the bullpen or I might use him as a spot starter," Dressen said. "I'll just have to wait and see how he throws."

Podres has pitched only 12 1/2 innings so far this season. In 27 games last year, he won seven and lost six with an earned run average of 3.43.

Schoendienst Elated Orlando Cepeda Bitter About Being Traded

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, one of the season's biggest trade baits, finally has been nipped off.

At first, the 28-year-old slugger, who swatted 226 homers for the San Francisco Giants, was bitter about being sent to the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday for left-handed pitcher Ray Sadecki. But he was expected to be on first base for the Cardinals to day in their game with the Chicago Cubs.

His start was delayed when cold weather postponed Monday's contest.

Cepeda said Herman Franks, Giants' manager, "wanted to trade me badly," especially after he had knee surgery in 1964.

"Anxious to Work"

"Franks told me to show what I could do when I came to spring training this year in good shape and anxious to work," said Cepeda. "I played in 1965 for Franks as a rookie, and now he wanted me to prove myself."

"I realized that Willie McCovey or I had to go eventually. Franks said McCovey was a better first baseman than me and that's that."

The Giants said they traded Cepeda because they needed a left-handed pitcher and they had a duplication at first base with McCovey there.

Cepeda, a month ago, nearly came to the Cubs in a deal that would have sent southpaw hurler Dick Ellsworth to the Giants.

"Cepeda then wasn't available to us on the terms the Cardinals obtained him," said Cub Vice President John Holland.

"Horace Stoneham (Giants' owner) just would not part with him at the time. But now somebody convinced Stoneham that all the Giants need to win the pennant is a top rated starting left-handed pitcher. And I guess they got him in Sadecki."

Franks said in Pittsburgh that he rates Cepeda "a fine ball player and a good first baseman."

"... and I think he will help the Cardinals tremendously," Cardinal Manager Schoendienst was elated with the trade.

Milwaukee Squad Takes First Place In Division 2

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A 205-245-194-644 series by a 43-year-old Buffalo, N.Y., grandmother, Mary Plunkett, gave her the Division 1 lead in the Woman's International Bowling Congress Tournament.

Mrs. Plunkett replaced Sherps Weimers of New Orleans, who had held the top spot for almost three weeks with 636.

Two changes were recorded Monday in Division 1 doubles: Ruth Brody and Loretta Datri of New London, Conn., had a 1,150 total that gave them fourth place, and Betty Lupicini of Granite City, Ill., and Rita Hennessey of St. Louis took sixth with 1,140.

In Division 1 team play, Levittown Plaza Lanes of Willingboro, N.J., slipped into fourth place with a 2,619.

In Division 2, for bowlers with averages of 150 or less, a Milwaukee squad, the W. J. Kuhn Tire Stores, took over the team lead with 2,419.

And in Division 2 singles, Ida Palenski of Nutley, N.J., moved into second place with 219-213-164-596.

The tournament, to draw about 20,000 bowlers, ends May 14.

Chinese Show Little Interest in Viet Nam

Official Line Is That War Helps Provide Incentive for Production

EDITOR'S NOTE — This article on Viet Nam and China was brought out of the Communist mainland by a British author who, unlike American reporters, had a chance to visit there. The Associated Press asked him to write of what he found.

By FRANK TUOHY

HANGCHOW, China. (AP) — Here in China, people are surprisingly lukewarm about the war in Viet Nam. I assume this is the official point of view, because official views are all the visiting foreigners gets.

Yet the Chinese certainly want foreigners to think they are ready for war. Take, for example, the curious goings-on outside my Nanking hotel.

Early on a Sunday morning — and Sunday is a rest day in China as in other countries — gangs of blue-clad girls were dragging in truckloads of earth from outside, and others were stamping it down on to a raised mound beyond some magnolia trees. Because it was a fine morning I went out before breakfast — you get to value these little excursions without the guide trotting beside you, steering you along like a Seeing Eye dog — and took some photographs. Afterward, I asked what all the girls were doing.

Few Shelters

"They are building an air raid shelter."

I have seen some more air-raid shelters in China, but not many. The Nanking hotel one perplexes me still. Why build a shelter for the foreign guests of a tourist hotel? Why make such a show of it? Are foreigners supposed to believe that the Chinese expect war? And further, do the Chinese really fear war, or is the Central Committee merely using the threat to boost morale after recent reverses on the economic and diplomatic fronts?

The position with regard to the Vietnamese conflict is extraordinarily complex. Posters and cartoons show cowardly GIs surrendering to naive already is the face of a Vietnamese soldier. There is a many. The Nanking hotel one was executed in diers. Large groups of these October 1964 for alleged attempts to blow up Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara at Saigon. I saw an interesting play about him on my last night in Peking.

Clapping Subdued

At all films, concerts and operas I went to, the audience applauded nationalist sentiments, but this time there was no clapping until the final curtain. Furthermore, nowhere in China have I seen a picture of Ho Chi Minh, and everyone is extremely cautious on the question of support.

A very intelligent and neutral Vietnamese journalist I know was told in one factory: "Viet Nam is an incentive for us to increase our production."

She asked "Do you mean to work hard in order to send your goods to North Viet Nam?"

"No, to help us encourage our workers to increase their productivity."

Almost the same words were used to me in a commune outside Canton. The group-mind of China was sure of this point.

Yet I feel that the Chinese believe that the Viet Cong is composed of South Vietnamese who are heroically liberating their country. The Chinese compare the situation to their own in 1945-49. Then they had finished a war with Japan, as the Vietnamese later ousted the French.

Chiang 'Corrupt'

Then, there remained Chiang Kai-shek and his followers, in Communist eyes corrupt and nepotistic, just like Ngo Dinh Diem and Nguyen Cao Ky. Then, there were Americans suing for peace while supporting the Kuomintang government with arms and supplies. Then, too, there was a liberation front headed by Mao Tse-tung.

Dean Rusk has said that China is seeking to establish a hegemony in Asia under the pretext of supporting wars of liberation. The Chinese answer which is acceptable when you have seen the country itself, is that they have much too much to do within their own frontiers to harbor such ambitions. The cautious sympathy they profess for the Vietnamese would seem to support this.

What concerns China are American intentions. Shelters may be few — the only one I saw in Peking was on the university campus — but there is plenty of evidence of a militaristic mood.

Country At War

In some ways the face of China already is the face of a country at war. Trains and public places are crowded with soldiers. Large groups of these were being harangued in the museum of the Chinese revolution in Peking. In the courtyard of the military museum, children lined up on a freezing day to inspect the reassembled wreckage of a U2 and two pilotless spy planes.

A plump girl soldier with braids pointed to the trade name: "Ryan Aeronautical Co. San Diego, California, Model B-M O-34A. Ser. 64-14875, produced 11 August 1964."

"This is proof of American aggression against China," she said and she recited a slogan on the museum wall, composed by party Vice Chairman Lin Biao: "The best weapon is not planes, not cannon, not rockets, not helicopters, but the thought of Chairman Mao."

Some Precautions

The Chinese may be relying on Chairman Mao's thought. "People not weapons" is another frequent catchphrase. But also I saw searchlights in the paddy fields around Canton, sirens on the ancient city walls of Nanking, and rifle drill for girls and boys on Shanghai's famous waterfront.

Posters in primary and middle schools teach children guerrilla tactics, and tell them to emulate the spirit of two soldier heroes, uncles Leo Feng and Wang Chieh. Neither of these two heroes, it may be mentioned, saw battle: One was killed in a grenade accident, the other by a falling telegraph pole.

Though differences in national psychology must be taken into account, the ever-present anti-American propaganda reminded me of Britain's phony war period of 1939-40: "We're going to hang the washing on the Seigfried Line," and so on.

But in Britain in 1939 there were air raid shelters being dug everywhere, and everyone already had a ration book. The ordinary Chinese is hearing empty boasts and not much else.

Paper Tigers

Chairman Mao's famous remark that "imperialists are paper tigers" is a continual theme in pictures; and so is the theme of girl warriors shooting down planes with rifles.

At a youth festival, I saw a line of boys, wearing false noses and U.S. steel helmets, mimic wet-legged cowards and sissies, while an 8-year-old girl shrieked into a microphone: "We are always ready to help Viet Nam and resist the aggressor."

China wants to consider all her martial activities as the result of America's evil intentions. The bringing down of yet another U.S. pilotless spy plane, two days after my arrival, was treated as part of a regular series of booster-shots for public morale.

How genuine is all this propaganda? Is it for war or just for increased productivity?

Next: Chinese and foreigners.

Dental Surgeons Add No Smoking Reasons

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

I am frequently indebted to other doctors for suggestions concerning this column. At the moment I have notes from two dental surgeons.

Dr. L. S., referring to a column about protection after a person once has had rheumatic fever, points out that transient bacteria resulting from otherwise ordinary procedures can lodge in damaged heart valves, increasing the damage, or result in bacterial endocarditis.

He observes: "Having a tooth removed or having teeth cleaned (manipulation of gum tissue), to name just two everyday treatments in dental practice, can cause serious complications in a child or an adult if the dentist isn't told that the patient has had rheumatic fever."

Of course, I have in the past recognition of Communist Chi-warned about extractions, but Dr. L. S. raises a most valuable point: Such a warning should be given prior to any procedure. The dentist can (and does) give penicillin or other protective drugs when he has been warned.

Similar precautions can be taken for other oral procedures, as well as non-dental ones: Minor surgery of any kind, removal of tonsils or adenoids, bronchoscopy, genito-urinary examination, and so on.

Another D. D. S. writes on a different matter: "Dear Doctor: As a dentist for 15 years my main interest has been to help people maintain clean, healthy mouths."

"Having come to the realization that smoking had a very bad effect on the teeth, gums and mucous membranes, I was happy to hear the medical profession condemn the practice."

"What I cannot understand is why you and other physicians aim your criticism only at cigars and give people the impression that cigars and pipes are approved. My experience has been that the most unsanitary conditions are found in the mouths of cigar and pipe smokers in that order."

A similar question was asked when the U. S. Surgeon General released his report on smoking and health a couple of years or so ago. The answer is that we have massive statistical support for the relationship between your request 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Post-Crescent B12 Tuesday, May 10, 1966

Physicians — I among them quite generally refer to tobacco or smoking in relation to health matters other than lung cancer. Smoking is strictly forbidden for an emphysema patient. The nicotine (not just the smoke) has its harmful effect on peripheral circulation. Smoking by whatever means, certainly bothers peptic ulcers, not to mention bronchitis, asthma and the like.

We can't always pin down which form of smoking is worst. But it is not only the cigarette which causes mischief. And now we have a voice from the field of dentistry pointing out still other reasons why we'd all be better off if we'd never begun to smoke in the first place. I am sure that other dentists concur.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between TB and emphysema? Is emphysema contagious? Do people with emphysema cough, like with TB? — Mrs. D. L. Tuberculosis is an infection from a germ. Emphysema is a loss of elasticity in the lung tissues and is not contagious. People with severe emphysema are likely to do a good deal of coughing.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a woman still has her tubes and ovaries, but the uterus and cervix have been removed, is pregnancy possible? — Mrs. B. E. No.

"Tips On How to Stop Smoking," by Dr. Molner, will help released his report on smoking you give up the habit. To write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper, enclosing with your request 10 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Communist China's Third Atomic Blast May Have Faltered

Peking Announcement Did Not Say Explosion Was Hydrogen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Red China may have come up with a dud in an attempt to detonate a hydrogen bomb, Defense Department sources suggested today.

The announcement by Peking radio of Communist China's third atomic explosion Monday said the test included "thermonuclear materials." But Peking stopped short of calling it a hydrogen bomb.

The mention of "thermonuclear materials," Pentagon sources said, could mean one of two things:

—Chinese scientists attached deuterium or tritium, used in a hydrogen weapon to an atomic bomb to analyze the effects of the blast on those elements.

—Or China set out to stage a hydrogen explosion and failed to get the proper energy release required to fuse the thermonuclear reaction.

A hydrogen bomb has an atomic device for a trigger. Millions of degrees of heat—provided by the splitting of the atom—are required to fuse the deuterium or tritium elements—and release their awesome power. The atomic device can, however, go off without unleashing the fusion process.

State Department press official

Marshall Wright said the test was "in the same general range" as the two previous Red Chinese detonations in October 1964 and May 1965. Both of these were equivalent to about 20,000 tons of TNT, or 20 kilotons.

Wright did not say whether the test was of a thermonuclear device.

Doubts Affect

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, asked about the test as he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he doubts it affects the international situation any more than did the first or second detonations.

One Atomic Energy Commission official described the blast as "one hundred KT (kilotons) or less."

"We don't know yet whether this was a thermonuclear explosion," he said, "and we won't before we get a reading on the atmospheric debris."

Pentagon sources said manned U2 planes would collect radioactive debris. An analysis of the fallout, combined with seismographic readings, would perhaps provide a key to the type of detonation.

A thermonuclear blast would put the Red Chinese an estimated three years ahead of schedule in their work, according to U.S. estimates.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, AEC chairman, said in 1964 after the first Chinese nuclear test that Red China probably was five years away from developing a hydrogen bomb.

As late as last October, however, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said Red China might set off its first thermonuclear blast within two years.

Jackson is chairman of the Joint Atomic Weapons subcommittee.

Defense Department officials credit Red China with little or no atomic weapons stockpile—but acknowledge that the Communists are on the verge of "weaponizing."

Meets Albanians

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs.

Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

Shelter Required

International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet fleet that has been fishing in international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

and worse in prospect, the Coast Guard said.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saletic, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

The CAF said the March issue of Navy, the Navy League publication, declared that homing devices of Russian manufacturers are being discovered

Nelson Seeks Federal Funds Of $3 Billion

Asks Financing for City Sewage Plants
To Fight Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation to provide 90 per cent federal financing and $3 billion a year for construction of city sewage treatment plants was proposed today by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Municipal and industrial pollution, he said, soon will destroy the nation's principal water resources unless some such program is established.

"The pollution crisis is deepening so rapidly that the federal government cannot any longer sit back and insist that other units of government solve the problem," Nelson said.

"The fact is, the job is not being done and never will be done unless we make this an urgent responsibility of the federal government."

"If the building of interstate highways is a task so urgent as to require 90 per cent federal financing, certainly the saving of our Great Lakes and our river systems is equally urgent and equally national in its significance."

Much of the pollution in the Great Lakes and major river systems, Nelson said, has been caused by the inability or unwillingness of cities to build adequate sewage treatment plants.

At present the federal government provides $150 million annually to pay 30 to 40 per cent of the cost of approved projects. He is proposing a $3 billion a year program of federal grants, with 90 per cent federal financing, or as much as 92 per cent if a city works with a state in sharing the cost and adopts a comprehensive pollution control plan.

"Many communities do not even bother to apply for federal grants today because they cannot raise the other 70 per cent of the cost from their overburdened property tax systems," Nelson said.

"Many communities are legally prevented from doing so because of constitutional limitations on their borrowing. Many city councils are blocked from doing so by referendum votes."

attended a public function since Nov. 26, when he met a Cambodian military delegation in Shanghai.

The report today did not say where or when Mao met with the Albanians. Red China's only European Communist allies in the Peking-Moscow struggle.

Shehu's delegation arrived in China late last month for the May Day celebrations in Peking, went on a tour and returned to the capital Sunday.

Missed May Day Review

Mao, now 72, did not attend the annual May Day review in Peking. The Chinese government denied the rumors abroad that he was seriously ill or even dead, and a non-Communist source in New York reported last week that the Chinese leader had been at the airport in Peking Feb. 28 to say goodbye to ex-President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana. The source said Mao appeared to be in good health.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Official election returns from last week's Democratic party primary show that Mrs. George C. Wallace, aspiring to succeed her governor-husband, dealt nine male opponents a more thorough defeat than was first thought.

The final returns, released in Birmingham by Roy Mayhall, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, showed that Mrs. Wallace got 480,841 votes, or 54 per cent of the total votes cast for all 10 candidates. When tabulations ceased last week, she had 52.3 per cent.

5 Killed, Many Wounded As Explosion Sets Off Machine Gun Fusillade

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Viet Cong terrorists exploded a mine in the heart of Saigon today, and U.S. sentries turned one of the capital's busy streets into a blood-drenched battleground.

Five persons were killed and 29 to 32 were wounded, most of them by American fire. The dead included a Vietnamese policeman, three Vietnamese women and a child. Eight Americans and at least 21 Vietnamese civilians were reported wounded.

A U.S. Army spokesman said there was no evidence of Viet Cong fire in the half-hour fusillade that followed the mine explosion. He told a news conference that an American MP thought they were being fired on and began spraying the streets with machine guns and automatic weapons. Crowds of Vietnamese on their way to work ran in terror or fell under the hail of bullets.

Seven Vietnamese suspected of planting the bomb were arrested, but all were cleared and released, the spokesman said.

"Our hearts go out to the innocent victims of this affair," the U.S. Embassy said in a statement.

"The root cause of it is, of course, the Viet Cong. The mission is deeply sympathetic to the innocent victims of this event and is prepared to help in every way we can those who found themselves in the way of the fire this morning."

An embassy spokesman said the families of victims would be paid compensation in accordance with normal procedure in such cases.

The military spokesman said it had not been determined yet how many of the casualties resulted from the mine explosion and how many were victims of the American fire.

Earlier reports said several passing Vietnamese were knocked off their bicycles by the blast and apparently injured.

The others appeared to have been hit by the massive barrage of machine-gun and automatic weapon fire that swept Hai Ba Trung and adjacent streets for nearly half an hour.

In the air war, meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers from Guam attacked the Viet Cong's C Zone near the Cambodian border for the 10th straight day. Their target was a Viet Cong troop concentration area 70 miles north.

Mongolia Acceptance

Renew Interest in Diplomatic Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials were reported looking for renewed interest today at recognition of Mongolia in the possibility of opening diplomatic relations with Mongolia, a land as a part of China.

The issue of U.S. nonrecognition policy toward Mongolia arose in its sharpest form in 1961 after the Soviet Union insisted that if the African country of Mauritania was to be given a seat in the United Nations, Mongolia must be admitted at the same time.

As a result U.S. diplomats in Moscow discussed recognition with Mongolian diplomats and found that the Mongolian government was agreeable to establishing diplomatic relations.

Action was blocked, however, by Nationalist China which, as a member of the U.N. Security Council, threatened to veto Mongolian membership in the United Nations.

The political tangle thus created was straightened out when the United States dropped its recognition plan and both Mauritania and Mongolia were voted into the world organization.

Since that time U.S. policy on the recognition question has been reviewed periodically but without any publicly known action being taken.

'Hell-Raising,

Nosy Business'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A panel of newspaper editors discarded the notion Monday that journalism is a profession, with the one editor describing it as "a nosy business and hell-raising."

And, said Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal in Salem, N.C., he would "hate to trade in this tradition for a mess of dubious dignities."

Carroll was among newspapermen attending the University of Michigan's Journalism Day, celebrating the school's 75th anniversary of journalism instruction.

"I don't consider my occupation a profession," said John O'Brien, managing editor of the Detroit News. "And I don't want it to be."

Proxmire Says $19 Million in Supplies Lost

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the Public Health Service was forced to destroy $19 million worth of medical supplies during the past year because it had no authority to release them for use.

He proposed legislation to correct what he called "this flagrant waste." It would amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act—of 1949.

In a speech for the Senate, Proxmire said the supplies were part of the nation's Civil Defense stockpile stored as a precaution against future disaster.

Surplus Supplies

"Because the medicines, drugs and other supplies technically never become surplus until they have lost their potency and are unfit for human use, the Public Health Service must sit idly by while they become useless," he said.

"These medical supplies should have been used to relieve human suffering and misery instead of being left on some storage shelf until their useful life expired."

A year ago, Proxmire said, the Public Health Service estimated that $62 million worth of these stored supplies had deteriorated, or would do so in a few years, to the point where they would be unfit for human use.

More to Follow

"Already $19 million worth has had to be destroyed," he said. "Every year more will follow."

"Most of the supplies in question are stored in more than 2,000 locations around the country as part of so-called 'packaged disaster hospitals.' 200-bed hospitals that are not available for current use but are kept in waiting for a disaster."

Proxmire said he proposes changing the law to permit such medical supplies to be taken out of storage before their shelf life expires and be used by other government agencies, sold as surplus or donated to public and private non-profit health organizations.

Sorensen Says LBJ

Faces Different Asian

Troubles Than JFK Did

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—President Johnson faces a full-scale war in Viet Nam, says a former White House aide, while the late President John F. Kennedy faced only a "small-scale insurrection."

Theodore Sorensen, an aide to both presidents, told a Union College audience Monday that, because of the different conditions confronting the two men, it was unfair to speculate what Kennedy might have done if he had not been assassinated.

New London High Track Given Okay

Bituminous Construction Planned For $14,500 Oval; Educators Also Approve Purchase of Furnishings

NEW LONDON — This city's youngsters walk to the new high long era without facilities for school, and a request by the track and field events ended city for the transfer of six feet Monday when the board of of land running along the education approved the $14,500 northside of Washington Street bid of a Milwaukee athletic so the roadway could be widened. The board said it would like to wait for a written proposal so it would know what was to be done with the land.

The surfaced, one-quarter mile, six lane track is to be constructed by Humphrey's Hansen, Milwaukee. The 3,500 square yard track will have inside and outside curbing and be of a bituminous type construction. A second layer of material as a permanent track for the Bear Creek schools, will be added over the base layer at a later date.

Supt. H. James Ramsdell said the base would serve up to six years, but then would need to be resurfaced or have a permanent layer put on.

Included in the bid is $700 in work by the city to install catch basins for run off of water on the track.

Maintenance Costly

A cinder track would cost less initially Ramsdell said, but maintenance would be more costly and a cinder track would have to be prepared for each meet.

Industrial arts department furniture and equipment, with a purchase price of $16,700, was approved by the board. The equipment was bought from a number of suppliers.

Purchase of classroom equipment for the new high school, costing $9,908 was approved.

The board approved a $800 change order which will omit the painting of floors in the shop and gymnasium areas. The school will receive the $500 credit and will put on a sealer coating of its own at a lower cost.

Ramsdell was given approval to prepare bids on equipping the kitchen for the hot lunch program. The program, to be initiated during the 1966-67 school year, will be the first in the history of the school.

Kitchen and cafeteria equipment is estimated to cost approximately $52,750. Total program cost will be about $80,000. The New London School District voters approved the lunch program in an advisory referendum April 5 by a more than 2-1 rate.

Ramsdell was given permission to attend a seminar on institutional financing at Marquette University June 20 to July 1.

An offer of $3,000 for the Northport School by the Town of Mukwa board was held over for study. Other items held over for further study included the serving of hot lunches to junior high school pupils at the Washington building instead of having the

Valley Cyclists To Face Trial For Battery

3 Appleton Men Cited in Charges Filed by Priest

GREEN BAY — A Marinette priest filed battery charges in County Court Branch 2 Friday against three Appleton motorists who allegedly pulled him from his car and struck him April 17 near Suamico.

James Laux, 18, of 2515 W. Fourth St.; Jerome Baer, 30, of 1706 N. Rankin St., and Joseph Laux, 27, of 1740 N. Appleton St. entered pleas of innocent before Judge James W. Byers, who set June 15 for jury trial.

The trio was released on $200 bond.

The Rev. Francis P. Reinke filed the complaint after he reportedly was accosted while driving on U.S. 141 in an area where a number of motorcycles were present because of a scheduled race at Sobieski Corners.

The priest's car reportedly forced one of the defendant's cycles to pull onto the shoulder of the highway, whereupon it pursued his vehicle, forcing it to pull off the road and stop. The car then rolled ahead and struck one of the motorcycles.

The defendants then allegedly pulled Father Reinke, who was not wearing clerical garb at the time, from the vehicle and struck him.

The trio had previously been arraigned in County Court Branch 2 on a disorderly conduct charge due to the incident, and a trial had been set for July 13. Authorities said today they expected to dismiss these counts, however.

Father Reinke is being represented in the private counsel battery action by former Circuit Court Judge Arold Murphy of Marinette.

County Hospital Costs Per Patient Below State Norm

Outagamie Charge $1.44 Under Wisconsin Average of $34.52

For the first time since 1957 the Outagamie County Hospital's 1965 per capita cost of maintaining one patient for a week has dropped below the average cost for other county hospitals in the state, John Engel, hospital superintendent, reported.

Figures for the fiscal year 1965, disclosed following an annual audit conducted at each of Wisconsin's 35 county hospitals by the Department of State Audit, reveal that the Outagamie hospital's per capita weekly cost was $34.52, or $1.44 below the state average, Engel said.

"We have maintained good standards and have expanded a great deal," Engel continued in explaining the significance of the hospital's per capita costs.

Costs Double
Cost figures, however, have nearly doubled during the past eight years. In 1957, the last time that the county hospital costs fell below the state norm, only $17.92 was necessary to maintain a patient for a week.

Engel said that higher wages and an increased staff account for approximately two-thirds of the cost total. He also attributed rising costs to increased programs of occupational therapy and psychiatric treatment.

The audit report is the combined result of a preliminary audit each fall and a final audit conducted in January. The hospital's fiscal year ends on June 30.

Adult Aid Amount
Engel said that all money received by the institution from the state for the next year depends on audit results. Outagamie County will be reimbursed at the state average rate for those patients at the hospital who are not residents of the county, he said.

At the present time 25 per cent of the patients are not residents of Outagamie County. The per capita cost is arrived at on the basis of total costs for the year divided by "patient weeks." For 1965 the hospital's total costs were $419,881. Patient weeks totaled 12,163.

In 1957 costs totaled $255,715 and patient weeks reached 14,269. Engel said that 100 per cent capacity for the hospital now is 12,604 patient weeks per year.

Capacity Cutback

The cutback in the hospital's capacity is due to the conversion of the first floor to the Golden Age Home in 1961. The capacity was reduced at that time from 322 to 232 patient.

In 1960 the per capita costs at the institution were more than $10 higher than the state average. The years 1963 and 1964 found costs drawing closer to the average.

The highest per capita costs for any of the 35 county hospitals in Wisconsin was registered at the Winnebago County Hospital. There it cost $60.17 per week to care for one patient.

Racine, Milwaukee, Waukesha, Walworth, Douglas, Rock, Dane, and Iowa counties finished the year with the next highest averages respectively. Outagamie County was tenth on the list of 35.

Interstate Roads Cost Residents $3 Million

Drivers in Outagamie, Calumet, Waupaca, Winnebago Counties Pay Via Auto Taxes

NEW YORK — A total of $3,054,000 has been contributed by the four county area of Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet and Waupaca, via gasoline and other auto taxes for the nation's 41,000 mile interstate highway project.

This figure is based on a report from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Not included in the report is the amount collected from other states.

The money collected here went into the government's highway trust fund, which pays 90 per cent of the cost of interstate highway construction. The other 10 per cent comes from the states.

Taking New Look
A new look is being taken at the progress of the interstate road system because of a proposal by the administration to increase the taxes by $1.6 billion over an eight-year period. Most of this rise would be borne by trucks and buses.

City Government and Conventions

There is always a certain amount of political hay to be harvested when a politician singles out conventions as a prime economy target. However, serious question has to be raised at the mayor's blanket condemnation of sending anyone from Appleton's municipal government outside of the state to attend a convention, conference, seminar, meeting or whatever you want to call them.

The Appleton Common Council has, over the years, reviewed the city's convention policy and with every updating came more stringent requirements for sending city officials and department heads to out-of-city and out-of-state events.

There is nothing wrong in having the City of Appleton represented at national conferences so the people who are responsible for helping turn the wheels of government can keep in contact with the outside world. Many times solutions to problems in Appleton can be found by coming in contact with representatives of other municipal governments. Like people, cities can benefit from the experiences of others.

It was admirable for the mayor to announce on his first day in office that he would not attend the U. S. Conference of Mayors in Dallas this month, but no one really expected him to in the first place.

The mayor, on the other hand, is to be commended for his announced efforts to strive for economy in government. However, unless the Council's convention policy is abused it would seem that a form of isolationism should not replace it at this point.

The city should continue to have a convention policy within reason.

Did She Mean It?

If one of the speeches in Washington last week is indicative, the best thing President Johnson will have going for him when he comes up for reelection in 1968 will be the National Federation of Republican Women.

The first vice-president of the organization is Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill. Mrs. John F. Schlafly in private life, she is the author of the book A Choice, Not An Echo, widely distributed by Goldwater forces in the 1964 campaign, and one of the principal right wing diatribes which drove voters by the hundreds of thousands into the Johnson following. Her elevation to the presidency of the organization is causing considerable concern in GOP circles. Election of new officers has been postponed, as a result, from this month to next, but the chances are Mrs. Schlafly still will get the job.

She told an opening session of the federation in Washington that legalized polygamy for the elderly is the latest gimmick of the Great Society. Here's how she put it: "LBJ really has gone overboard in his efforts to appeal to youth. Now we learn that Great Society planners have come up with a new gimmick to capture the votes of the elderly — a plan to legalize polygamy for those over 60."

According to Mrs. Schlafly the plan would work like this: a man working to age 65 would be entitled to only one wife, but if he quits at 60 he could have two because he would be easing unemployment. At age 72 he would be permitted a third wife, and if blind a fourth.

Her documentation for this charge was a newspaper clipping she waved in front of her audience. She said she was quoting Dr. Victor Kassel and remarked: "He's a Salt Lake City physician and I assume he must be a Democrat."

The facts are that in a news story April 16 Dr. Kassel was described as an expert in medical care of the aged. His views on polygamy after 60 were quoted from a scientific magazine Geriatrics. He was not identified with any political party.

Ascribing Dr. Kassel's thoughts on a technical subject from a newspaper clipping as stated policy of the Johnson Administration is typical of the gross form of exaggeration Mrs. Schlafly and authors of her stature generally employ. We would like to pass off her Washington remarks as a poor attempt at humor. But on her record we have to assume that she was really serious.

Education and the Spy Business

There have been heated denials, explanations and statements of degree of involvement from Michigan State University officials over the article in Ramparts magazine claiming that the university had at least five Central Intelligence Agency agents on its payroll in Saigon between 1955 and 1959. Whatever the facts of the matter, the episode indicates how far removed from educational purpose some of our major institutions have become.

There are currently 72 American universities operating 101 projects in 38 countries under the auspices of the Agency for International Development. The major aim of the projects is to offer educational opportunities, of the kind available on American campuses, to people in foreign countries. Also involved is the use of technical know-how and research abilities, far advanced in the United States, to help in the development of some of the new nations. But it hardly seems part of the university responsibility to train a police force in another country as the CIA men attached to the MSU program apparently did. As James Perkins writes in his book, The University in Transition, "universities should not take on anything abroad that they are not doing on their own campus at home."

So what was it that inspired President John Hannah of MSU to accept the CIA men or, if the top officials did not know of the identity of the agents, to hire them when they had not been previously employed at MSU? The answer seems to be that competitive drive for prestige that goes on among the heads of big universities. A university with a government contract in a foreign country has more prestige, apparently, than a university which restricts itself to its facilities at home. The more prestige, the more money. And of course the government contracts pay well.

In 1959, according to New York Times Education editor Fred Hechiner, MSU was a university "on the make." Apparently the Saigon project was supposed to increase its fame as much as the football team.

Whether an American university should act in close contact with the United States Government in its projects on foreign soil can be debated. But the problem here is not so much the arousing of foreign suspicion that university personnel are merely government employees and not interested in educational projects as such. The seeking of the government contracts itself seems far removed from the matter of education, or the spreading of important knowledge, if university officials are really seeking primarily to raise the university's prestige and, in reflection, their own reputations.

The knowledge available at American universities and the possibilities of making it available in less fortunate nations is tremendous. But the MSU episode also shows what happens when an institution gets outside of its recognized fields. Not only did it get into the questionable area of ethics in employing the CIA agents, when the revolt against President Diem came, the CIA trained counterintelligence police experts either had no warning of the coup or couldn't prevent it. This is somewhat irrelevant but it should shake up university officials interested in only the pragmatic aspects of the case.

Sherman's 'Bummers' Praised

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 13, 1865.

Sherman's "bummers" have not received full justice at the hands of historians of the late campaign through the Carolinas. They have generally been spoken of as having rendered more service to themselves than to the Army—as having been actuated solely by the desire to plunder in all operations.

The title of "bummers" was given to them early in the campaign to such men as were in the habit of foraging on their own, independent of the regular details assigned to the job after each day's march.

They generally lagged behind in camps until commands were given and the men got started on the roads. Then they would take off to the left and to the right, taking by-ways and cowpaths, leaving the main road to the Army.

Their first object was to get "transportation" for their plunder and the first half dozen farms they came to were laid under "contribution" for rolling stock and motive power. It must be admitted they seldom stopped at "legitimate" forage and loaded their commandeered carts, wagons and buggies with miscellaneous appropriations often not needed nor even wanted.

On several occasions the "bummers" found grist mills and ran them for a whole day, making corn meal and flour, for want of which the Army would otherwise have suffered. They frequently proved themselves of great value to the cause before they went into camp at night, and the confessions of many an officer of rank go to prove that the army would have gone to bed hungry often but for these men to whom a rather contemptuous name has been applied.

Setting Record Straight On Miss Wisconsin Pageant

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The Post-Crescent carried the picture of the newly crowned "Miss Wisconsin" of the Miss USA Pageant on the front page of the Saturday issue.

To explain the confusion that this picture has brought to many of your readers who are ardent followers of our pageant, it is necessary to write the following.

The Appleton Jaycees are the sponsoring organization of the "Miss Appleton Pageant" held in our city each year. This is franchised to us by the Miss Wisconsin Pageant of Oshkosh, and is an official preliminary of the Miss America Pageant. The pageant must be run in accordance with all the rules and regulations put forth by the Miss America Pageant, Inc.

Miss Appleton is entered in the Miss Wisconsin Pageant at Oshkosh, which is also a franchised state competition of the Miss America Pageant.

Being familiar with the Appleton Pageant, the State Pageant and the Miss America Pageant itself, it is necessary to explain that we are not at all affiliated with the Miss USA Pageant. I have no knowledge of how the contestants are secured and what awards are offered to the winners.

However, I would like to make known the fact that in the Miss America Pageant Scholarship Foundation, at local and state pageants, $350,000 in scholarships are awarded annually.

Our Miss Wisconsin Pageant will be held in Oshkosh on July 8, 9, and 10, with the finals being televised this year on Channel 2, WBAY.

This is not intended in any way to show dissatisfaction with any other type pageant, but merely to avoid any possible confusion to your readers and the followers of the Miss Wisconsin Pageant in Oshkosh.

E. Newberry Re-Zoning Hurts Long Range Planning

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The recent actions of the city Plan Commission and the Council with regard to zoning on E. Newberry St. raises a question which concerns every citizen of Appleton. The latest development is that the aldermen have decided to reconsider a petition to rezone property in that area for multi-family housing, after having turned down that very same proposal a few weeks before.

On Monday morning of last week, on very short notice, after a hearing which very few of the residents of the area could attend, the Plan Commission recommended that the council reverse its original decision on the property. Now the residents of the area will have to reorganize their protest against this threat to the attractiveness of their neighborhood. But whatever happens in this case, it is clear that once again the city government is in favor of setting aside established zoning rules and that nothing short of total mobilization of a whole neighborhood will stop them, and possibly not even that.

The excuse that is given for setting aside our zoning rules is that multi-family dwellings enhance the quality of a neighborhood. This argument flies in the face of what everybody knows: that the best houses in town are always in single-family areas; that renters have little interest in keeping up the appearances of someone else's property; that owners of income property are more interested in income than they are in appearances.

Even if we grant that there are many fine multi-family dwellings in the city, the issue still remains: are the city fathers going to waive the zoning rules of Appleton every time someone wants to make a fast buck, or are they going to consider the wishes of all the people in the neighborhood of the property in question? Even more important, are they, by over-riding the long range plan for the city in order to make a few people happy today, going to spoil the city for generations to come? It is in their power.

State's Democrats in Washington Alarmed About Fall Election

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
WASHINGTON — There is an attitude of deliberate realism among the Wisconsin representatives here as they assess the political outlook in their home state in another election year.

Wyngaard

Republicans tend to be optimistic. Everything they hear about the statehouse situation appears to them to be hopeful. The evidence of unrest along the rural routes encourages them to believe that they may recapture some of the votes in the country precincts that had been slipping away to the Democrats in recent times.

The Asiatic war is an uncertain factor, but the evident consensus is that it cannot aid the Democrats, and especially if the electorate become persuaded — as are the knowledgeable here — that the struggle in Viet Nam will be a very long one with escalating costs in lives, inflation, and taxes.

Yet the memory of the Republican disaster of 1964 and the unprecedented Democratic presidential landslide in Wisconsin has changed permanently. They need only to contemplate the number of their Democratic colleagues in the Wisconsin congressional delegation—including two Democratic U. S. senators for the first time in the memory of Wisconsin residents—if they need reminders.

Thus the Republican consensus here can be described as moderate optimism, tempered with deliberate caution in the response to the queries of the visitor.

DEMS, TOO
Democrats share the caution and especially those holding marginal districts as a result of the Republican default of two years ago. The anxiety of such men as Reps. Race of Fond du Lac and Stalbaum of Racine is too plain to be missed. The vigor of the mid-term political stumping of Sen.

Gaylord Nelson tells its own story. Nelson clearly has his eye upon the performance of Gov. Warren P. Knowles and regards him as a probable rival in 1968, although nobody here has real evidence of the Knowles intentions. What they have is a reasonable uniformity in the reporting from their own lieutenants at home that Knowles is likely to be given a second term in the fall, and the logical assumption that a successful two-term governor is not likely to turn down an opportunity to compete for a Senate seat.

The distressed complaints of such men as Race and Stalbaum about the national administration policies touching the dairy farmer have a greater attention value in Wisconsin than they do in the upper councils of the administration here.

One insider reminded me that the administration now has such an overwhelming majority in Congress that it can anticipate the loss of some marginal seats with equanimity. The reasoning is supported by the traditional gains of the minority party in off-year elections.

THE WAR
The Wisconsin citizen who visits Washington and expects much illumination of the Viet Nam problem is likely to be disappointed.

Men such as Reps. Zablocki of Milwaukee and Thomson of Richland Center, who probably are best informed because of their access to non-public information provided to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, say they are hopeful about the progress of American arms in Viet Nam. But they speak in sober tones and with solemn mien, nevertheless. There are deep reservations about the earlier record of American performance, and a deliberate tone of restraint in speculating about the possibilities of ultimate American withdrawal because of the doubtful condition of domestic politics there.

What are these representatives of Wisconsin hearing from their constituents about the Asian involvement? "They are deeply confused," replied one congressman who is envied by his colleagues for his expert knowledge of his constituency and his diligent attention to its wishes.

Strictly Personal

Good in All Music, Even in Rock and Roll

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS
"I know you're a devotee of classical music," writes a woman in California, "and therefore I'm surprised that you've never devoted a column to attacking that horrible rock-and-roll music our young people are growing up on these days."

Harris

The reason is very simple: I have never attacked rock-and-roll music because I think like it — not all of it, of course, but then there's a lot of classical music I can't stand, either.

Not only do I happen to enjoy some rock-and-roll, but I think its popularity among young people represents a great improvement over the popular music my generation listened to. Except for a few Cole Porter and Jerome Kern tunes, most of what we sang and danced to was absolute junk.

Now, a good deal of rock-and-roll may be junk also; but it is more honest, more vital, more true to the native roots of music than the banal and the emotional attitudes of young people in a more authentic fashion.

All categories of music are artificial and largely meaningless — classical, popular, jazz, rock-and-roll. There are basically only two kinds of music: good and bad. Both can be found in all categories, and any category (even the classical) has much more bad than good.

I have carefully listened to many of my daughter's Beatles records, and the percentage of good music in them is just as high as in any other form of music. And certainly it is higher than in those inexpressibly corny Lawrence Welk renditions, which older people of no musical taste seem to find so satisfying.

It is the middle ground in all the arts that is usually a wasteland, for art is a creature of extremes. The very high and the very low forms have more substance and interest than the wide ranges in between — nothing in music is worse, for instance, than "semi-classical" music, which is a bastardization combining the most corrupt elements of the classical and the popular.

Social structures, incidentally, exhibit the same characteristics: there is some kind of affinity between the aristocrat and the proletariat, but little between them and the middle classes. The bourgeois virtues, like the bourgeois tastes, are timorously respectable, safely bland, and unutterably dull.

The younger generation has rejected our kind of "pop" music on quite legitimate and sensible grounds — because it was phony, slick, sentimental and musically sterile. What they have put in its place may not be great, but it is, in its way, closer to Mozart and Beethoven's emotive drive than the vapid Tim Pan Alleysisms of my own youth.

Economics Indicators Continue to Point Up

BY SYLVIA PORTER

It is now 63 months since the bottom of the last recession in February, 1961, and still, the overwhelming majority of the "economic indicators" on which we rely for signals of a turn continue to point strongly upward.

The boom may be far too boomy to last, but the indicators are not yet flashing a signal that the end is in sight. The speed of the advance may be far too speedy to be sustained.

but there is as yet no hard evidence of any slowdown. The risk that inflation and efforts to curb it may undermine this extraordinarily prolonged business upswing is very real, but worries about this result have yet to be translated into reality.

I'm not just summarizing informed opinions here. I'm reporting the story being told on this today by the movements of the 26 leading indicators selected out of thousands by the National Bureau of Economic Research as most valuable in identifying stages of the U.S. business cycle.

Definite Signals

Of the 26, 12 are "leading indicators": they usually signal in advance a business turn up or down. Of these 12, 10 are definitely signaling "up" and the other two are "question-marks."

Another nine are "coincident indicators": they usually move up or down with the economy as a whole. All nine of these are saying that today we're moving up.

The remaining five are "lagging indicators": they usually turn up or down after the economy as a whole has turned up or down. All five of these also are saying the economy is on the upbear.

This would be a striking unanimity of signals at any time. It is an astounding unanimity after more than five years of upsurge.

Here are the indicators and an authoritative interpretation of what they are saying now.

Thailand Gets Closer to War In Viet Nam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Little by little, Thailand is getting closer to the war in Viet Nam.

The government announced this week that at South Viet Nam's request, Thailand is sending a logistical support group consisting of a landing ship tank, a coastal patrol boat and two C123 transport planes.

The craft will be manned by about 180 Thais, this country's first official military contingent to South Viet Nam.

Thailand heretofore has provided only indirect assistance to the Viet Nam war. It has been hesitant to acknowledge that U.S. planes are using Thai bases for strikes against North Viet Nam.

There is a theory that if South Viet Nam falls, Laos would be overrun by the Communists without too much trouble and Thailand will find itself facing Communist guns.

Communist terrorists operate in north and northeastern Thailand.

Outagamie Formally to Ask For UW Site Reconsideration

Spokesmen Say Action to Follow Discovery Proceeding Completion

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Outagamie County forces protesting the selection of a Green Bay site for the campus of the newly authorized northeastern Wisconsin branch of the University of Wisconsin will move formally for a reconsideration of that decision when their discovery proceeding now underway in the courts is concluded, they said here Monday.

The State Building Commission, on the request of the county, has agreed to give the critics of the Green Bay site selection another opportunity to argue for a cancellation of that decision before any further action is taken for the development of the so-called Shorewood site on the east side of Green Bay.

Stewart Honeck, the county's counsel, explained that he was unable to present his arguments because he has not yet finished the examination of witnesses in the discovery proceeding, and because the transcript of the testimony of earlier witnesses is not yet available.

Technical Possibility Although there was nothing said here Monday that indicated the commission may reconsider its original vote of five to three in favor of a Green Bay campus to serve northeastern Wisconsin, it is technically possible for the commission to change its position. The Outagamie County delegation appeared briefly, and the commissioners made no comment beyond consenting to their further appearance, at the conclusion of a long day of argument involving the selection of a site for a proposed southeastern Wisconsin University branch to serve the Racine-Kenosha area.

Meanwhile, there were reports that Honeck who has already called numerous witnesses to testify about the background details of the Shorewood site decision, has listed others to testify before his proceedings are concluded. Among them may be officials of the State Highway Commission and President Fred H. Harrington of the University of Wisconsin, who served as a member of the statutory site selection committee, according to those reports.

Sen. Gerald Lorge of Outapublic had no opportunity to observe or participate. The persistent objection of the Outagamie County leaders to the Shorewood site in Green Bay is that it would be difficult for hundreds of students in other Fox River Valley cities west of the Fox River to reach, and that a location on the western edge of Green Bay would better suit the long-range educational needs of the northeastern counties.

Name Chancellor Harrington told a reporter Monday that he hopes to be able to recommend the selection of a chancellor for the northeastern campus to the University regents at the June meeting. He said he is not yet certain whether his nominee will be drawn from the present staff of faculty of the University, or will be hired from the outside. But he emphasized that the man chosen will be of a professional distinction and experience suited to the chancellor's rank. He explained that the heads of the new branch universities will have equal rank with the chancellors of the Madison and Milwaukee campuses and the chancellor of the University extension services.

The regents last week accepted Harrington's recommendation for the selection of one of the leading scholars of the University's Letters and Science faculty for the southeastern campus command. He is Irvin G. Wylie, now chairman of the key history department on the Madison campus, and one of the best known history departments in the country.

Names Chosen The university president also said that while the regents have not yet acted formally, the university has adopted the nomenclature "University of Wisconsin-Southeast" and "University of Wisconsin-Northeast" for the new third and fourth year branches authorized in a 1965 legislative act.

Several members of the building commission queried when they were references to the 1935 Duesenberg 538, a 1936 "four year universities" for the two sections of the state. While it is clear that the enabling act provides only for third and fourth year centers to supplement separate freshman-Sophomore centers for the immediate future, ultimately the new schools will evolve into full-fledged single campus universities of major educational importance and high enrollments.

Officers will be elected and there will be a social hour and card party. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moder and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schwarz are co-chairmen of the refreshment committee.

Plan Review Of Southeast Site for UW

Kenosha County Location Comes Under Criticism

MADISON (AP) — The State Building Commission has decided to await a review by another agency before acting on a recommendation to locate a new University of Wisconsin campus between Racine and Kenosha.

The Kenosha County site, recommended by a special site selection committee, came under attack Monday at a Building Commission hearing.

After the four-hour hearing, the commission said it would wait one month before acting on the recommendation.

The delay will give the State Coordinating Committee for Higher Education a chance to review the recommendation at a meeting June 2.

Expected in June The final Building Commission decision is expected June 13.

Not all were opposed to the recommended site at the hearing Monday.

David L. Phillips, a Kenosha attorney, said opposition to the site near Petrifying Springs, a county park, was a "trickle of disappointment as measures against an ocean of support."

"We hope the adults can get together and stop squabbling with their rather provincial attitudes," said a student, James Bernhardt of Kenosha.

Opponents included Assemblyman Merrill Stalbaum, R-Waterloo, who called the committee touring car owned by Nick Spannagel of Sheboygan to a "dirty operation."

"There is evidence that it might be well for the grand jury to investigate this thing," Stalbaum said.

Other opponents included Sen. Taylor Benson, D-Frankville, Imperial, the 1923 Franklin, 1926 Somers Town Board Chairman Essex, a 1916 Overland belong-Alva Paddock and Kenneth ing to John Boswell, Oconto Horn of Mukwonago.

who argued that the land could be acquired without cost and the location would be in the path of future population growth.

The motion to delay came from Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Milwaukee. The motion was approved 5-2 with Assemblymen Glen Pommerening, R-Wauwata, and Angelo Greco, D-Milwaukee, dissenting.

County district attorney. Lawson's attorney told County Judge Gustave J. Keller Monday that the Oshkosh youth faces three traffic counts in Winnebago County, growing out of the same incident in which an Outagamie Patrolman allegedly was struck. It may be possible Lawson will face all of the charges in a Winnebago County court.

He was arrested Friday night after his car ran into the rear of a truck at County Trunk BB and S. Bluemound Road. Although the accident reportedly occurred in Winnebago County, when he appeared Monday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

So Bad It's Classic,
Says Jingo of Movie

'Madame X' Starring Lana Turner Good
'Camp' Example; Also Worst Film of Decade

BY JINGO
In case you're wondering what camp is, a perfect example is showing at the Appleton Theater. Every cliché (both dialogue and visual) in the book is used in "Madame X," a monument to bad taste and banality in the grandest tradition of "Batman," pop art and Mrs. Miller.

For the sheer joy of witnessing the worst movie of the year, "Madame X" should not be missed. It closes this week, so time is growing short. Lana Turner bawls, the background music blares, Lana Turner bawls, the plot "bombs," Lana Turner bawls. Come to think of it, Lana Turner bawls a lot. Jingo noted a few musty eyes and snuffles in the audience. Could it be the onlookers liked it? Is it POSSIBLE they missed the hilarity and took it seriously and LIKED it? "Madame X" is one of the worst movies of the decade.

Night on TV

Speaking of camp Burt Ward, who plays Robin on "Batman" has recorded his first single, which will undoubtedly be rushed into the record stores. He is also writing songs for other recordings he will make.

Next Monday NBC will present a color special (8-9, Channels 4-5) called "The Best on Record." It will feature performers who were winners of the 1965 Grammy Awards, given annually by the recording industry. Included on the show will be Tony Bennett, Bob Hope, Roger Miller, Bill Cosby, Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, Duke Ellington, Jody Miller, Danah Shore, Robert Goulet, Perry Como, Petula Clark, Don Adams, Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, Bobby Darin, Diahann Carroll, Henry Mancini, Bill Dana, Godfrey Cambridge, the Anita Kerr Singers and Steve Allen. Not a bad lineup.

DOWN WITH BISHOP. Keep the cards and letters coming. Jingo reports heavy response on his campaign to keep the "Tonight Show" free of Bishop for five weeks starting July 11. All letters received before May 31 will be forwarded to Walter D. Scott, chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting Company.

A few viewers were said to see ABC cancel its daytime soap, "The Young Marrieds." It seems that one Walter Reynolds was on the verge of suicide just as the series was dropped. A few letters asked why it was removed at such a crucial time. Obviously, not enough viewers cared whether Reynolds and the other characters survived or not.

5-Cent Coin in U.S.
Marks First Century

By JERRY BUCK
NEW YORK (AP) — In your pocket or purse you probably are carrying one of the most enduring and widespread results of the Civil War — the five-cent piece.

The nickel, celebrating its 100th birthday this month was born as a result of the war's economic chaos. Silver coins were hoarded, and the government had to find a way to replace them. The nickel was the result.

It also came about because a Pennsylvania miner, Joseph Wharton, needed a new market for his nickel — and he had two powerful friends in Congress, Thaddeus Stevens and William D. Kelley.

And though the nickel has come out of the mints by the billions the U.S. government has never officially recognized its name as the "nickel." To the Treasury it is simply the "five-cent piece."

9-10 — Channels 11-6-9 — The Fugitive returns this season's first episode. Once more, David Janssen has a close call. Indian Head
The Indian head nickel appeared in 1913 with a design made by James Earl Fraser, a noted American sculptor. Taxay said Fraser offered his help because "he wanted the new nickel to be something truly American."

The head was an idealized portrait of three Indian chiefs, John Big Tree of the Iroquois, Iron Tail of the Sioux, and Two Moons of the Cheyenne. Of the three, only Chief Big Tree is still alive.

Chief Big Tree who was the nose and forehead of the image, is 101 and lives on the Onondaga reservation near Syracuse, N.Y. He will visit the money museum at the opening of the centennial Vending Machines.

The Indian head nickel actually was held up for two years during a wrangle with the vending machine industry, which objected to the new relief because it would mean each machine had to be adjusted. But the secretary of the Treasury finally told them the design would not be changed.

The Jefferson nickel, designed by Felix Schlag, appeared in 1938 and is being minted at an ever increasing rate to meet demand.

And what is the museum doing with the nickel as souvenirs years after the coin went out of circulation. Taxay estimates, Wooden nickels

Holdup Man $35

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A persistent stockup man took $35 from a Denver supermarket Monday night.

Police said he walked in, pointed a gun at the clerk and declared, "This is a stickup."

At that moment two customers walked in. The robber stuffed his gun into his pocket and wandered around the store while the customers shopped.

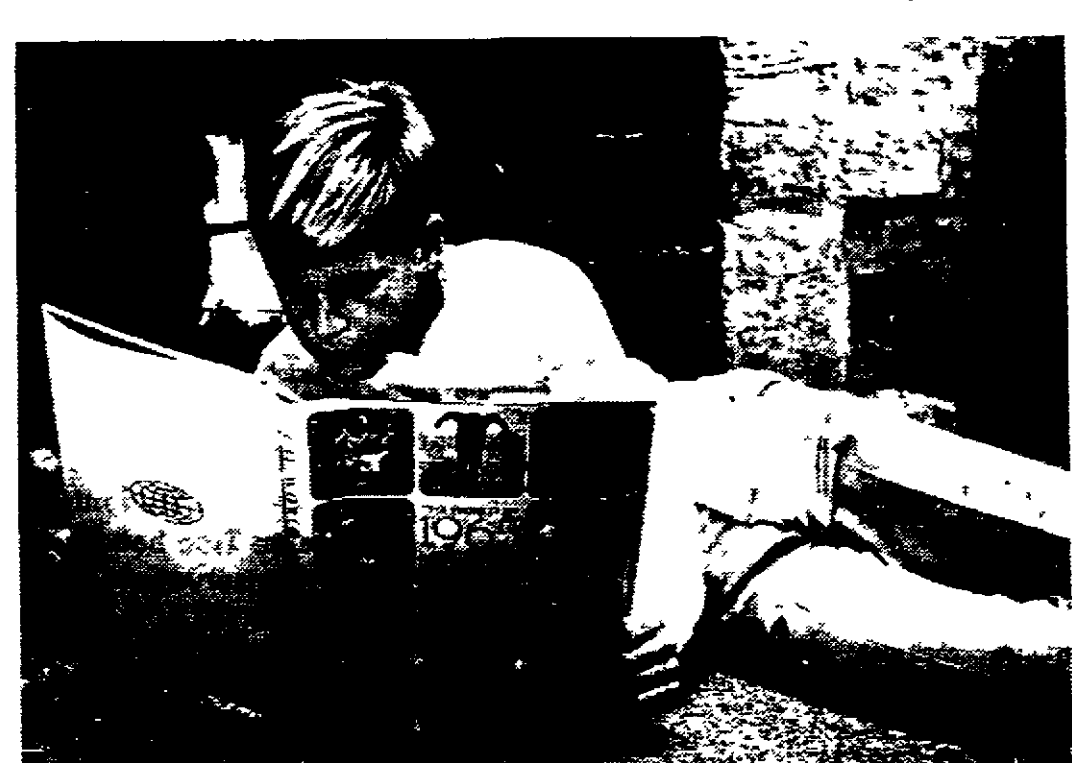

After they departed he returned and said, "This is still a stickup."

The clerk handed him $35 and he walked out.

Secret Study Ordered on China Problem

Critics Complain
Johnson's Policies
Not Open to Change

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
Although liberal critics of President Johnson's foreign policy complain that his China policy is frozen, the truth is that he ordered a secret top-level study of the problem as early as last summer.

Long before the Viet Nam war kicked up liberal demands for a policy change, Mr. Johnson set the study in motion with a formal directive signed by

Evans

Novak

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert McNamara. It asked for answers to this most difficult question: during the next 10 years, where will Communist China be and how are relations between the U. S. and China likely to change?

Labelled "top secret," the China project is tapping the opinions of China experts in the universities, in all the U. S. embassies in Asia and Communist-bloc countries and among foreign experts. So far, it has produced one highly classified interim report for the White House.

Mao Regime
The President's decision to put his influence behind the study was keyed to this assumption: the regime of Mao Tse-tung and his veterans of the "long march" during the Chinese civil war 30 years ago is about to end. Will there then be a basic change in Chinese foreign policy with the coming of the new generation of Chinese leaders? Is war with China unlikely, possible, probable, or inevitable, as that vast land moves into a new mold?

The study team is deep into several specific questions, such as the purge of intellectuals, the anxiety of the military leadership, the integrity of the "cadre system" (political agents who tell the people how and what to think) and the meaning of the Peking-Moscow split.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, the Connecticut Democrat now embroiled in charges involving fund-raising dinners, has been all but barred from the White House.

President Johnson himself was the speaker at two Dodd fund-raising dinners. He has told intimates he assumed the money raised was earmarked for Dodd's actual campaign expenditures, not to meet the Senator's between-campaign obligations. Otherwise, he would never have agreed to appear for Dodd.

Avoid Problem
Key assistants of the President have been advised not to involve themselves in Dodd's troubles. Furthermore, they have been instructed not to take telephone calls from Dodd's office that in any way deal with the fund-raising problem.

Thus, Dodd lacks not only the public support of the White House in his deepening difficulty, but also the President's 6:30 and 10:05 Seven Women, personal support, though he had once at 8:30, (starts Wednesday) one of Mr. Johnson's most faithful allies in the Senate.

Dodd was the one Democrat selected to fly with Hubert Humphrey to Washington from the Atlantic City convention in 1964, just before the President publicly picked Humphrey as his running-mate. Dodd's presence was later explained this way: Mr. Johnson wanted to help him in his own re-election race in Connecticut by giving him a good headline.

Through 1965, Dodd had ready access to the President and on one occasion was sent to Viet Nam on a fact-finding mission. While old Senate supporters such as Vance Hartke of Indiana and Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota deserted the President, Dodd remained his ally.

Rep. O'Konski Favors State Horse Betting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, R-Wis., said Monday he favored legalization of parimutuel horse racing in Wisconsin, now prohibited by state law.

"The people of Wisconsin are no different from those in California, Ohio, New York and many other states that permit betting on the sport of kings, namely horse racing," O'Konski said.

Probably as many from those states go to heaven as from Wisconsin, he continued, "and if it is good enough for them it ought to be good enough for the people of Wisconsin."

Tourists and vacationers of today want excitement and recreation, including horse racing with legalized betting, he said. He estimated that such racing held during Memorial Day and Labor Day would more than double the tourist flow into northern Wisconsin.

Baton Twirlers Win 4 Trophies

KAUKAUNA — DeDe's Diplomats won four trophies in the annual May Day competition for team and individual baton twirling at LaCrosse Saturday.

Both the senior large and senior small teams won second place trophies. The junior small team took third place, but received no trophy.
